WE NOMINATE

Svetlana Alliluyeva, daughter of the late Russian dictator Josef Stalin and one of the Princeton Community's most respected members, who has rightfully been described as "a free soul after a half-life of suffocation." This fall, some two years after her survival and defection to the United States electrified the Western World and for days made front-page news, Mrs. Alliluyeva has brought forth one of the memorable books of 1969, "Only One Year," the story of a year in the personal history of a courageous, highly sensitive individual – a year starting with her flight from Moscow in December, 1966, and running to the following December here in Princeton.

Aside from a surprisingly acidulous reception in "The New York Times Book Review," the new volume, vastly different from her memoirs, "Twenty Letters to a Friend," has won towering acclaim. The country's most widely quoted authority on the Soviet Union reacted in this fashion: "She has become a fine writer, exceptionally skilled at brief and striking vignettes, at frank, expressive personal reactions, at deft characterization. . . . You know more about Stalin from a few of her lines than from volumes of turgid political analysis. Her analysis . . . is as devastating an indictment as has been penned in this decade against the failure of the Soviet dream."

Many American readers, particularly at a time when this nation is struggling with divisive problems and seems torn by nagging inner doubts, will "bask in the warmth and joy which this country inspires in Svetlana." In writing of the United States, she notes: "Since leaving Moscow, and after living in India and the United States, I have become another person. . . . I find it impossible to explain what this feeling of inner freedom, which now fills me, is like. No one in the Soviet Union knows anything like this sensation, and neither did I. None. I could not live a single day without it."

In Princeton this 44-year old native of Russia has found what she was seeking – peace, quiet and privacy. Her many Princeton friends include George F. Kennan, former American Ambassador to Moscow, and attorney Edward S. Greenbaum, both of whom advised her to settle in the Borough in that Princeton's selling-point is its privacy. And like Mrs. Alliluyeva's other friends here and elsewhere, these two have one thing in common – zipped lips when it comes to Mrs. Alliluyeva and her every-day life in a tiny municipality embracing some 1.76 square miles and numbering less than 13,000 residents.

Because Princeton is still "so small," many of its residents – without prying – can't help but know a little about her daily routine. She lives in a moderate-sized house in the Borough's Western Sector. It is at once comfortable, simple and charming with limited grounds for gardens. She cooks her own food, which is becoming more and more Americanized; does her own shopping and does all of her own housekeeping, right down to scrubbing floors on her hands and knees; putters a lot in good weather in her garden, and devotes most of her time to her real loves—reading and writing.

For feeling that here in her adopted community, and throughout the United States, she is "surrounded by the warmth of a good home;" for her deep concern "for the issues that have a meaning for all of humanity;" for writing a book that "is not merely a tale of escape to a new home" but is first and foremost "an account of a conversion;" she is TOWN TOPICS' nominee as

MORATORIUM

Town Will Participate. The nation wide October 15 Vietnam Moratorium will be observed next Wednesday in Princeton by many organizations and in many ways.

The question of support for the Moratorium occupied a large part of the public meeting of Township Committee Monday night and observers could not recall any other occasion when such impassioned remarks on a national issue occupied a local governing body.

The Moratorium took on political overtones when Democratic Committee candidates Golda Gottlieb and Richard Bergman presented a memorandum urging Committee "as leaders of the community to recognize formally October 15."

The candidates stated that in campaigning the municipality, "we have found wide spread and non partisan support for the Moratorium and have felt the urgency expressed by voters that the war be ended immediately."

Mayor John D. Wallace, running for re-election on the Republican ticket, told his political opponents that Committee would talk about the request in executive session. He added that Committee had also been given copies of a resolution from the City Council of Chicago asking Presidential action to end the war, with the suggestion that Committee use the Chicago memo as a model for action.

Committee then went ahead with routine municipal housekeeping. After several minutes, Clarence Di Donato, 27 Harris Road, asked sharply for a public discussion of the Democrats' request, not discussion in executive session.

With equal sharpness, William Cherry, 24 Dempsey Avenue, declared it was not Committee's legal function to act on national matters, nor were Committeemen qualified to do so.

The exchange between Committee and audience and between Committeemen themselves, then became even more polarized politically (Mr Cherry is Republican Committeeman in the Township's District 4).

If our job as elected officials is being made impossible by national policy, we have the right to petition the national body," stated Democratic Committeeman Thomas Hartmann to Mr. Cherry.

It would be a grave mistake for Committee to start responding to every national or state issue," retorted Republican Committeeman William L. Wilson. "I am strongly opposed to our Vietnam policy and I will so write to the president, but I will vote 'no' on any formal Township Committee action."

Committeeman Harry J. Vulwedeer, also a Republican, urged Committee "not to take any stand to hinder our administration in its efforts to get out of Vietnam." He stated his view that "if we don't fight Communism there, we'll have to fight it somewhere else."

Returning to the battle, Mr. Hartman declared that "urban communities are being destroyed" by Vietnam, with Model Cities funds cut in half and many vital programs cut or eliminated.

"Princeton is affected by these cuts," he said, "and a municipal body has an obligation to speak, if national policy is destroying the community."

Mayor Wallace reminded his political opponents of the non partisan nature of the October 15 Moratorium and added, "It is my view that the war must be ended and ended immediately."

The freeze in Committee's stance was broken by James

Plan Peace Demonstration

The Women's International League for Peace and Freedom will sponsor an anti-war demonstration in Palmer Square from noon to 2 Wednesday, October 15. The action is part of a nationwide moratorium on business as usual, whose aim is to provide concerned citizens with an opportunity to express opposition to the war in Vietnam. Those interested are encouraged to ignore their regular activities of the day and to concentrate on some aspect of the moratorium.

The demonstration led by the Princeton-Lawrence branch, will take the form of a quiet protest with pickets and posters emphasizing the need to stop the killing in Vietnam. Anyone sympathetic to the cause is invited to participate

A. Floyd who suggested that his fellow Committeemen "urge all Princeton people to express themselves on October 15, individually or in groups, by sending statements on Vietnam to Washington."

Mayor Wallace promptly endorsed this view. Mr. Wilson said he would be willing to subscribe to such an "open ended" proposal, and Mr Hartman agreed also.

On Campus. The Moratorium had its genesis on campuses and most of the activity in Princeton will be on campuses, wherever they may be.

Princeton University will begin the night before, with a Teach In open to the entire community, starting at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday in Alexander Hall If the crowd is too big, everyone will move to Dillon Gym.

Keynote speaker will be Senator Harold Hughes of Iowa. Among 18 other speakers will be Noam Chomsky of M.I.T.; Leonard Budin, lawyer who defended Dr. Benjamin Spock; Gabriel Kolko, author of "The Politics of War." The teach-in is expected to last about five hours.

On Wednesday, a prayer vigil and memorial service for the war dead will be held in the University Chapel at 10 a.m. From 1:30 to 3:30 p.m., a rally will be held in front of Nassau Hall and Allard K. Loewenstein, Democratic Congressman from New York who spear headed last year's McCarthy campaign, is scheduled to speak.

Following the rally, students and faculty will canvass the town seeking signatures on petitions calling for an end to American involvement in Vietnam. At 8 p.m. Wednesday, a rally will be held at the State House in Trenton.

Princeton University itself is scheduled to be open with classes in session, President Robert Goheen has stated that anyone associated with the University may participate in the Moratorium observances.

The list above may not be a precise schedule of University observances. Speakers may change plans; the faculty is scheduled to meet this Wednesday to talk it over and undergraduates themselves are divided along moderate-militant lines.

Princeton Theological Seminary has suspended all Wednesday classes. From 9 until noon, students and faculty will discuss such subjects as Christian ethics and American policy in Asia, the effect of the war on the American economy and the black man, and similar related topics.

"The War Game," a film, will be shown at 9 a.m., 10:30 a.m. and 9 p.m. in the auditorium of the Seminary Campus Center. The film and all discussion groups are open to the Princeton public.

Westminster Choir College will hold an "Hour of Peace" service from 11 a.m. until noon in the campus chapel. Brahms' Requiem Mass will be part of the program, which is being sponsored by the college's chapter of the Music Educators National Conference.

The Choir College observance, like others around Princeton, is open to the public.

In School. At Princeton High School, programs will be available for students who want to attend and students will be excused from regular classes to attend any of these programs, said Miss Florence Burke, principal.

During the first four periods of the day, there will be speakers and a film in the auditorium. In the last four periods, small groups of students will meet in vacant classrooms. A Student Council committee is planning the day.

In the Middle School, observation of the Moratorium is up to the individual teacher, according to Michael Grove, principal. In many classes, especially social studies, students may be given special reading on Monday and Tuesday in such fields as the geography of Vietnam, the political or military aspects of the war, its socio economic background. These topics will then be discussed on Wednesday.

At Educational Testing Service, an all-day discussion session will be held in the Conference Center from 9 to 6, featuring talks by Richard Falk of Princeton University; a Defense Department film, "Why Are We in Vietnam" and a panel discussion in "Alternatives for Ending the War."

ETS itself will be open, and the discussions have been planned by a staff committee.

A Service for Peace will be led by the Rev. Robert L. Cope at the Unitarian Church at 8:30 p.m. and the public is invited to attend.

Student leaders planning the Moratorium have announced their plans to escalate the observance each month the war continues, observing two days in November, three in December and so on. A march against the war to Washington has been scheduled for November 14.

RABIES SHOTS OFFERED

Required for License. Township ordinance requires that all dogs be inoculated against rabies within six months preceding the date of the filing for a dog license. The Boards of Health of Princeton Township and Borough will hold free clinics for the vaccination of dogs.

The clinics will be open from 4 to 6 p.m. at the following locations: Monday, rear of Borough Hall; Tuesday, Princeton Township Garage; Wednesday, October 15, Chestnut Street Firehouse; Thursday, October 16, Princeton Township Garage; and Friday, October 17, Harrison Street Firehouse.

DANCE SATURDAY

Sponsored by Soul Sisters. Floyd Felton, a New York disc jockey of soul programs, will entertain at a dance from 7:30 to 11:30 Saturday at the YWCA. The dance is sponsored by The Soul Sisters, Inc., a YWCA club for Princeton area junior high and high school students. Admission will be charged, and refreshments will be available.

MORE RATEABLES!

In Towoship. Taxpayers with thin pocketbooks and a head for figures will be interested in the $6,700,600 in new rateables added to the tax rolls in Princeton Township, bringing the total equalized valuation to $93,928,000.

At 50% assessment, the new tally comes to $3,353,000. Because the tax year straddles the calendar year, the 1969 allotment from that $3,353,000 is $1,864,700, for $121,391 in taxes. Of that sum, the Township receives $88,012 and Mercer County the rest.

Reading off the figures Monday night to Township Committee, Administrator Joseph E. Nini said that three large constructions account for the increase: the car wash on Alexander Street, the addition to Opinion Research Corporation and the Princeton University faculty apartments on Harrison and Hartley.

Slow Down. Committee agreed to ask the state for a traffic survey on Sycamore Road. Residents have petitioned for a reduction in the speed limit to 25 m.p.h.

In another part of the Township, residents of State Road complain that the state still hasn't improved the Route 206 warning signs on the approach to the Ewing intersection, and hasn't planted signs reducing the speed from 50 to 45.

Acting Township Engineer Joseph Hodak said a state transportation man came to the Township, looked over 206 and announced that it would be another month at least, before signs were up.

Negotiations are under way with property owners for the rights-of-way needed to build a jug handle at the Ewing-206 intersection, Committeeman Harry J. Volwieder and Mr. Nini reported.

An ordinance was introduced re-zoning the Institute for Advanced Study's 12.25-acre tract off Mercer Road from a two acre R-1 zone to a one-acre R-3 zone. The Institute plans to develop this "Weller Tract" with 10 homes, and has asked the Township for the re-zoning, pointing out that contiguous areas are in the smaller, one-acre zone.

PARTY IN THE NEWS: Most social gatherings are just that, but when a former president of the Princeton Democratic Association invites 300 guests to his home to meet the Republican candidate for governor, the occasion is worthy of note. At right is John F. McCarthy Jr. of Westcott Road with Congressman William T. Cahill and Mrs. Cahill. For the story, see box this page.

Democrat for Cahill

John F. McCarthy Jr., a good solid Democratic name in Princeton politics for many years, is supporting Republican Congressman William T. Cahill for governor. (See "Why I Plan to Vote," page 22.)

Mr. and Mrs. McCarthy entertained about 300 Democrats and independents (and even some Republicans) at a reception for Congressman Cahill Saturday at the McCarthys' Westcott Road home. The McCarthys estimate that about 200 Democrats and Independents living in Princeton are "Citizens for Cahill."

In the early 50's, Mr. McCarthy ran unsuccessfully on the Democratic ticket for Township Committee and a few years later, was president of the Princeton Democratic Association. He was also Borough attorney when Raymond F. Male was Democratic mayor of the Borough.

Objections have been raised by the Society of Friends, whose Stony Brook Meeting House adjoins the propery. Public hearing on the ordinance will be Monday, October 20.

The way bids have been going lately—up—Committee was startled to find a low bid of $9,516 for the 3,900 feet of guard rail along Quaker Bridge Road. Township engineers had estimated a cost of $20,475. The other two bids were $9,652 and $9,984.

"This is a new indoor record," commented Mayor John D. Wallace.

The Princeton Water Company and its parent, the Elizabethtown Water Company, have applied to the state for permission to draw 3½ million to 1½ million gallons of water per day from the canal. This is the company's third application to the state. The other two were for one and two million gallons, respectively.

Public hearing before the Division of Water Policy and Supply will be November 3. Objections must be filed by October 30.

Committee introduced an ordinance updating the Fire Prevention code, with public hearing October 20. This is the latest step in preparing the "workable program" required by Federal housing officials for low-cost public housing. Next step: an updated electrical code.

Lawrence Houston has submitted his resignation as a Township member of the Princeton Civil Rights Commission. Mrs. Malcolm Diamond, from the audience Monday night, asked Mayor Wallace to appoint a woman. All Township representatives on the Commission are men.

SITE PLAN: PART ONE

First Test Passed. The Township's site plan review board seems to be tough enough to stand up in court.

Last Friday in Trenton, Superior Court Judge Frank Kingfield said the site plan board will not be declared illegal "at this level of court." He said he would not hear any more arguments about the validity of the board, adding that "valid parts by far outweigh any part that might be invalid."

The owner of the Princeton Shopping Center, George Warnecke, has challenged in court the legality of the site plan review board formally known as the environmental design review board.

Mr. Warnecke wants to expand the present Bamberger store in the Shopping Center and build a wholly new A & P building. He obtained a variance from the Township Zoning Board in June, 1966, but he allowed his first building permit to expire, and before he obtained another one, the Township passed its site plan review ordinance.

When the Center applied for a new building permit, therefore, it was required to present the Bamberger-A & P plans to the new site plan review board. Plans for traffic circulation, parking, lighting and screening were rejected by the site plan board three times, and so Mr. Warnecke went to court.

"We say the planning board—to which the site plan board reports — cannot change the verdict of the Zoning Board by refusing to issue the building permit," said John Boyd of Newark, attorney for Mr. Warnecke.

Township attorney Gordon Griffin told the court that the site-plan ordinance is "free standing"—that is, not part of the zoning ordinance. Site plan is an advisory board only, Mr. Griffin said, and does not have final authority.

Judge Kingfield directed Mr. Griffin and Mr. Boyd to prepare arguments on the subject, "Does the builder have a 'vested right' to expand the Center because he has a variance in his favor?" and come back to the court on October 31.

MAN BELIEVED DROWNED

John O'Hara's Stepson. A Navy and Coast Guard search in Hawaiian waters has been discontinued for the son of Mrs. Katherine O'Hara and stepson of novelist John O'Hara of Pretty Brook Road.

St. George Bryan is believed to have drowned on September 25 while sailing with a friend from Oahu to one of the smaller Islands. The small boat capsized and it is thought that the two attempted to swim to shore. No trace of the two men or the boat has been found according to reports reaching here.

The son also of Joseph St. George Bryan, 3d of Virginia, the younger Bryan was in his early 30s. He is also survived by a brother and a sister.

A memorial service will be held Thursday in Hawaii.

ACCIDENT IS FATAL

To Princeton Junction Hunter. The death of a Princeton Junction resident Sunday has been ruled a hunting accident by West Windsor Township police.

According to Ptl. Frank Cox, Ronald W. Fisher, 25, of Penn Lyle Road, was shot in the neck with a .22 caliber pistol while he was hunting squirrels from a golf cart in a wooded area of the Cranbury golf course where he is employed as a groundskeeper. He died in Hospital.

Mr. Fisher and another club employee, Frank Ficarro, 24, of the Hightstown - Princeton Road, were riding through the woods when the borrowed pistol reportedly fell to the floor of the cart and fired. Mr. Ficarro ran back to the club house to summon help and the Cranbury First Aid Squad took the victim to the hospital. The incident occurred around 8 a.m.

Lentho Burns, a state game warden, has entered the investigation because the two young men were hunting squirrels out of season with a pistol.

FALLS ASLEEP AT WHEEL

Small Car Total Loss. Sleep is a gentle thing, said the poet Coleridge — but not when you are driving a car.

Thomas H. Blaney, III, 30, of Sunset Road, Belle Mead, was jolted awake at 12:30 Friday morning when his car jumped the curb near the intersection of Leigh Avenue as it was descending Bayard Lane. He told Borough police he had spent the night bowling and had fallen asleep going home.

Taken to Princeton Hospital, he received sutures for lacerations of the face and skull and contusions and abrasions of the left arm. He was released.

According to Borough Ptl. Bernard Leonhardt, who interviewed the driver and charged him with careless driving, after Mr. Blaney's small foreign car jumped the curb at Leigh, it hit a Public Service pole, continued along the curb for 104 feet, cut through a hedge row, struck the guy wire of a second pole and bounced off a pine tree before coming to rest. The car was a total loss.

The initial contact took place in the Borough, the rest of the accident occurred in the Township.

About 90 minutes late, a three car accident took place at Bayard Lane and Stockton Street.

Patrick J. MacDonald, 23, of E. Delaware Avenue, Pennington, and Kurt A. Kahlfs, 47, Honey Brook Drive, were stopped in the line of traffic waiting for a red light, when the rear of the Rahlfs car was rammed from behind by a car driven by Lorelei P. Nicholson, 38, Franklin Corner Road, Lawrence Township.

Mr. Rahlfs' small foreign car was hit with such force that its rear engine was pushed through the roof. He was released from Princeton Hospital after treatment for assorted lacerations, abrasions

News Of The THEATRES

NEWCOMERS

In McCarter Company. Seven newcomers will join the McCarter repertory company for the 1969-70 season.

One of them, Rudy Holbrook, will be making a kind of homecoming. She appeared here from 1964 to 1966 as a member of the company, and audiences will recall her portrayal of Mrs. Malaprop in "The Rivals."

This past summer, she starred with Alfred Drake in a new musical, "On Time." This coming season at McCarter, she will play Meg in "Birthday Party" and Lady Wishfort in "Way of the World."

Arthur Robert, another newcomer, played Hank in the New York production of "The Boys in the Band." He has played in the Lincoln Center "Galileo" and in "Hamlet" and "Othello" for the New York Shakespeare Festival. At McCarter, he will play Goldberg in "Birthday Party" and Mirabell in "Way of the World."

John Lithgow, who directed last year's "As You Like It" at McCarter, will be this year's Professor Higgins in "Pygmalion." His directional assignments include "Much Ado About Nothing" and "Way of the World."

George Emch comes from "Fiddler on the Roof" in which he played the Constable on a one-year tour to 120 cities in the United States and Canada. He will be McCarter's Pickering in "Pygmalion" and Dogberry in "Much Ado About Nothing."

Ray Aranha is currently touring south Jersey in "The Thwarting of Baron Bolligrew", playing Squire Blackheart. Later in the season, he will be Crooks in "Of Mice and Men" and Ajax in "Troilus and Cressida."

Clive White, a recent graduate of Oberlin, will be Mrs. Pearce in "Pygmalion" . . . Richard Pilcher, recent graduate of the University of Michigan, who has appeared in APA productions and in the Missouri Repertory Theatre, will be Richard in "Ah, Wilderness!"

"MIXED BAG"

New Black Theatre Group. The debut performance of a new group of black undergraduates will take place this Saturday at 9:15 p.m. in Wilcox Hall of Woodrow Wilson College on the University campus. The public is invited, and the performance is free.

"Mixed Bag" is the name of the initial offering. It will consist of one-act plays, dance, poetry reading and music, all reflecting the recent work of artists in the black theatre.

The new group comprises undergraduates from Princeton, Westminster Choir College, Rider College and Douglass College. The organization is called Harambee House Players, a name derived from "harambee," the Swahili word meaning "forward with unity."

Harambee House hopes to take its productions into the black communities of Princeton, Trenton, New Brunswick and Newark. Community groups who would like to schedule the Players in their programs are asked to confer with Joseph D. Moore, assistant dean of students, West College, Princeton University.

Black adults and students who would like to participate in future productions are also asked to contact Dean Moore.

"We hope to make Harambee House a permanent future on the theatrical scene in this area," said Emmett Pritchard, Princeton junior who is co-ordinator of the group's activities. "Our purpose is to explore the Afro-American cultural mystique through involvement in it. We seek to reach primarily the black audiences of this area, and further deepen their awareness of themselves as black individuals."

The Association of Black Collegians and Woodrow Wilson College are the campus groups sponsoring the debut performance.

WE'RE OFF . . .

Broadway. "Tom Paine," originally staged by the La Mama troupe "way off Broadway, will come to McCarter for a single performance on Monday, October 20, at 8:30 p.m.

All seats for McCarter's Off Broadway series have been sold, but a limited number of standing room tickets are now on sale at the box office.

THE LEARNING TREE: Gordon Park's beautifully photographed film based upon his Kansas youth opens on Monday at the Garden Theatre.

IN TRANSIT

Chicagoans Coming. Chicago Transit Authority will head the parade of McCarter Theatre Folk & Rock Specials this fall.

The seven man Authority will appear in Alexander Hall on the University campus Saturday, October 18, at 8 p.m. Tickets—those that are left—are on sale at McCarter.

Chicago is a mixture of jazz, blues, rock and symphonics, coming out of brass and wind instruments as well as such traditional voices as guitar, organ and drums.

SIT ON STAGE

For Ashkenazy. Stage seats and a few remaining orchestra seats are now on sale for the piano recital to be given in McCarter by the Soviet pianist Vladimir Ashkenazy.

The pianist, opening artist for the Music at McCarter series, will play works by Robert Schumann and the complete Mousorgsky "Pictures at an Exhibition."

"NEW CINEMA"

Documentary is First. "Salesman," a documentary in cinema-verite style, will open McCarter's "New Cinema" series for 1969-70. The film, to be shown next Tuesday at 8 p.m., will be preceded by a commentary from the Maysles brothers (Albert and David) who will appear in person to talk about the film they made.

"Salesman" describes the travels in New England and Florida of four door-to-door Bible salesmen. The camera follows them while they make house calls, relax in lonely motel rooms and attend a Bible salesmen's convention.

With Two Films. "Marat, Sade" and "Fistful of Dollars" will bring to a close McCarter's pre-season film revival series.

This Friday at 8, the theatre will show "Fistful of Dollars," the first of the "Italian" westerns. It was filmed in Italy, and launched the career of Clint Eastwood as the friendless-noname cowboy.

This Saturday at 8, McCarter will show "Marat/Sade," Peter Brook's film adaptation of Peter Weiss' famous play. The film follows the play word for word, with the cast of the London and New York production.

NATURALISTS TO SPEAK

In Film Series. Five nationally known naturalists and conservationists will show their full color Audubon Wildlife Films this year under the auspices of the Trenton Natural ist Club. The series is held at Trenton Junior High School No. 3, West State Street and Parkside Avenue.

The opening film is "Three Seasons North," scedaled for 8 p.m. this Thursday. D. J. Nelson, the narrator, traveled to the remote northern reaches of British Columbia to photograph one of nature's most appealing creatures, the elusive River otter, as well as mountain sheep, moose, bear, caribou and birds.

The speakers who represent the Audubon Society are drawn from many professions. Among them are business and professional men, college professors, museum directors and ranchers. All are skilled photographers and experienced lecturers. The National Audubon Society is the oldest and largest of the conservation organizations in this country.

Tickets for individual film showings or for the series may be purchased at the door. Further information about the Trenton Naturalist Club may be obtained from Miss Margaretta R. Coxenhoven, 924-1125; or Edgar Brick, 392 4181.

PRINCE

Dr Zhivago (now playing) David Lean's classic film based upon the Nobel prize-winning novel a love story set against the background of the Russian Revolution. A beautiful film, as many are these days, but also rare in its stunning ability to capture mood

PLAYHOUSE

The Chairman (now playing) The Red China setting adds a certain filip to this routine adventure story, starring Gregory Peck. It adds a certain political tinge in depicting Mao, rightly or wrongly, as the man who puts the interests of the state above any concern for human life.

The central portion of the film is strictly cloak-and-dagger action. Gregory Peck is the Nobel prize-winning scientist who is requested by an American-British-Russian command to recover the formula for a revolutionary soil-fertilizing enzyme developed in Red China.

A tiny transmitting device is implanted below Peck's skin to defy detection by the Chinese. Unknown to Peck, the transmitter contains an explosive coil which can be detonated to prevent him from communicating information in the event of his capture.

Peck's mission is ultimately discovered, and the climax is a hair-raising pursuit to the Russian border. Certain aspects of the film are intriguing the awesome security precautions in the American Embassy in Peking, the hot line from the tracking station to the President, Conrad Yama bears an extraordinary resemblance to Mao.

tional Convention in Chicago.

His protagonist, a young TV cameraman, played by Robert Forster, plunges into many areas of newsmaking, turning from a talk with black militants to a training session with a riot squad. He moves on to other events of the day, finally to the tumultuous convention, its raw dialogue, rioting and brutalities.

Except for a nude sequence, even the fictional episodes carry a feeling of authenticity in Wexler's study of present-day violence.

GARDEN

The Learning Tree (starts Monday) Coming as it does at this juncture in the status of race relations, this film by famed Negro photographer journalist Gordon Parks cannot be appraised simply as a movie. It is an affirmation of faith by its maker—not only in America itself, but in the possibility of blacks and whites coming to an understanding and moving purposefully ahead together in the building of a better life.

This is an adaption of his "autobiographical novel" of the same title—a nostalgic throwback to the less turbulent 1920's, recounting his impressions of a growing up as a black boy in Kansas.

The format is episodic, and there are moments of both hu-

FUN AND GAMES

At Bon Appetit, We've been given a Swiss challenge by Danish-born Carl Andersen, owner of Bon Appetit, the gourmet shop in Princeton shopping Center.

He stakes a Swiss watch that you can't guess the weight of the huge wheel of emmentaler cheese that he has in his store this weekend. The contest ends at 4 p.m. this Saturday.

And a 22-year-old, red-haired Swiss miss will be on hand to demonstrate the making of cheese fondue. Her name is Elizabeth Koenigsdorfer, this year's talented ambassador of the Switzerland Cheese Association. You'll find she can chit-chat with you in English, German, French and in the various canton dialects.

She is a graduate of a college course in home economics and is well prepared to explain the unique taste and properties of the many cheeses made in Switzerland. She knows how to make cheese, how to store it—a problem that many of us will be asking her about—and how to cook with it and serve it.

Her endless number of dishes include fondue, cheese pastry, tarts, a perfect Quiche Lorraine and a gourmet's bubbling Raclette. Here's a fine chance to learn more about natural cheese, a great source of protein.

Mr. and Mrs. Andersen will give also away a Swiss handkerchief with every purchase of Swiss cheese. There will also be free recipe booklets. So, squint at the emmentaler wheel and take a guess.

Miss Koenigsdorfer, in full Swiss rig, will demonstrate fondue making this Thursday and Friday at 11 a.m., 1:30 and 3:30 p.m.; on Saturday at 11 a.m. and 2 p.m.

While you're in Bon Appetit, look around at the many interesting offerings that will lift your menu above the ordinary. There are excellent, German-style saussages, such as Bauernwurst—which is delicious either cold or grilled.

And of course, the ever-popular Braunschweiger liverwurst, perfect with pumpernickel. The variety is bewildering at first, but the Andersens are understanding and helpful.

If you ever find that you must feed an unexpected number of guests, Bon Appetit will come to your rescue with marvelous salads, prepared fresh each day. These include both American-style and German-style potato salad, and Mrs. Andersen's specialty, Salade Francaise, which she makes with green, wax and kidney beans, blended with her own spicing.

And here you'll also find Mrs. Selina Rizzo's hors d'oeuvres, light in texture, easy to freeze and unusually delicious. Mrs. Andersen swears by her.

THE GIFT GALLEON

At Turntable Junction. A surprising number of women are buying something here, something there, squirreling it away for Christmas gifts. To these wonderful women, and to those who want to join them, we suggest a drive on a pleasant fall day over to The Gift Galleon at Turntable Junction in Flemington.

The Gift Galleon is owned by Mrs. Julia L. Larson, who personally selects the shop items on her travels with her husband. Everything is imported, largely from Spain, Portugal, Mexico and South America and the range goes from alligator and other fine leathers to Mayan and Spanish artifacts.

There are copies of primitive Mayan clay figurines, marvelous wood carvings in mahogany by Jose Pinal, Mexican sterling jewelry.

We were taken by the hand-woven Mexican serapes—such as the shocking pink with the ancient "greek key" design appearing in black low above two black bars. All are very different and beautiful. They would be terrific with winter skirts and pants.

Also, the hand-knitted Mexican ponchos, made in pure wool, and knitted in a heavy double-knit pattern. The designs are typically Mexican.

The Gift Galleon has antelope suede skirts, supple as silk, in solid colors that will delight your eye—orchid, green beige, maroon—and of course, black. All have a small designer detail in a contrasting color.

The sophisticated leather bags are quite possibly just exactly what you've been looking for. The skins include alligator, cobra, lizard, and detail will please the most particular. The belts of turtle and rattlesnake skin are unusual—great for tweeds.

Wandering around, you will be fascinated by the artifacts and objects d'art.

A stallion in Mexican white onyx, for instance, a purely beautiful piece for your treasure shelf. Or rust-veined white onyx ashtrays and hinged boxes.

In porcelain pieces imported from Spain, two wind swept nuns, their coifs a-flutter, their grey skirts flowing — an extremely affectionate piece of sculpture. The piece is about 18" high.

You will be intrigued with the subtle coloring and luster of the abalone shell when you see it in small boxes ($8.95) and in a large nearly straight-sided pitcher. The inside is sprayed silver, and the handle is very contemporary, straight-out and cross-bared.

We noticed an extremely packable tea set in burnished copper. The cream and sugar pieces fit under the pot lid for storage. And in the lid is a small clapper for summoning the stardy. The set is $24.95; with the matching tray—$32.

The Gift Galleon has a great many Mexican tiles, all different, it seemed to us. They are set in hardcarved bases and are suitable for hanging on your wall, or for adorning your best table.

The handcarved wood chests from Mexico are extremely varied in size and design. Some are very small, others range up to about 20" across the front by 9" high. There are round tops, flat-tops; all have fine craftsmanship.

If you are looking for the Spanish items that will add a certain zest to your home decor, the Galleon has some interesting hanging lamps in wrought iron, and amusing Mexican tin wastebaskets.

The piece de resistance, as far as we were concerned was a low, round table of mexican onyx. About 32" in diameter, the center contains an inset chessboard of contrasting onyx squares. ($215)

It may be that some of the items will be gone by the time you stop by, for most of the Gift Galleon things are one (or a few) of a kind.

MUSIC
In Princeton

WE BEGIN WITH BRAHMS

At Musical Amateurs. Johannes Brahms Germaa Requiem will open the year for singers and instrumentalists of the Princeton Society of Musical Amateurs. The group will assemble this Sunday at 5 p.m. in the Unitarian Church, Cherry Hill Road off Route 206, using the Requiem with full orchestra and soloists.

The Musical Amateurs gather once a month on Sunday from October through May to read through choral music for pleasure and not performance. No preliminary rehearsals are held (except for instrumentalists) and there are no auditions for singers.

Everyone is invited to attend and to sing, and the group normally consists of towns people, undergraduates, and students of all ages.

Singers who would like to do some of the solo parts are invited to call Mrs. Barbara Lewis, 921-7358. Instrumentalists are asked to get in touch with Robert Lohman, 921-6757, for information about playing in the orchestra.

This Sunday, the conductor will be J. Merrill Knapp of the Princeton University music department. Soloists will be Lois Laverty, soprano and Bruce Fifer, bass.

On subsequent Sundays, the Amateur singers and orchestra will read the Bach Cantatas 106 and 20 (November 16); Handel's "Messiah" (December 14); Hayden's "Heiligmesse" (January 18); Gilbert and Sullivan's "Iolanthe" (February 15); Kodaly's Te Deum (March 15); Randall Thompson's Mass of the Holy Spirit (April 19) and the Bach Mass in B minor on May 10.

RECITALS TO BEGIN

At Theological Seminary This year's series of weekly organ recitals in Miller Chapel, Princeton Theological Seminary, will open with Timothy L. Zimmerman, a senior at Westminster Choir College. Open to the public, the concert is scheduled for Thursday from 1:35 to 2:05 p.m.

A native of Allentown, Pa., Mr. Zimmerman is organist and choir director at St. John's Lutheran Church, Slatington, Pa. and was previously assistant organist at St. Luke's Church in Allentown. He is a candidate for the Bachelor of Music (Sacred) degee under the supervision of Joan H. Lippincott.

SEASON BEGINS

For University Orchestra. Works by J. C. Bach and Handel will be featured when The Princeton University Orchestra, under the direction of Professor Peter Westergaard, opens its season with an informal concert next Friday, October 17, at 9 p.m.

The program will be J. C. Bach, Sinfonia in B Flat, Opus 18, No. 2 and Handel: Suite No. 2 in D Major from the "Water Music."

The Bach Sinfonia will be conducted by the orchestra's assistant conductor, Gilbert Levine '70. Mr. Levine is studying conducting with Jacques Louis Monod and was the conductor last summer of the Haydn Chamber Orchestra at the Congregation of the Arts at Dartmouth College. He has appeared as bassoon soloist with the Portland Baroque Ensemble and at concerts of the Friends of Music at Princeton. He is the recipient of a Naamburg Scholarship of the Princeton University Music Department for 1969-70.

mor and pathos. One takes an idyllic look at the pangs of adolescence—firs love, family conflict, comradeship with one's peers.

Nor is melodrama left out. There is a murder of a white farmer by a Negro—a crime for which another white man is brought to trial. The crime is witnessed by the boy who wavers between silence and speaking to the town authorities.

The film is beautifully photographied in color. The competent cast is composed of newcomers and veteran character actors. Kyle Johnson is the young Parks.

"The Learning Tree" is remarkable for the absence of bitterness. It is a testament of good will. Gordon Parks also wrote the impressive musical score.

Mrs. Nicholson was charged with careless driving by Sgt. Robert Anderson. It was wet and raining at the time —2:06 a.m.

Three Cars Again. A second three-car accident in the Borough took place Friday morning at 9 on Stockton Road, 175 feet west of Elm Road.

Eleanore A. Bosler, 24, of Groveville, told police that she was driving on Stockton when a station wagon in front of her, operated by John E. Servis, 48, of Lawrenceville Road, suddenly stopped. Her small car pushed the station wagon into a third car driven by Lorraine Cole, 36, of Morrisville, Pa.

Mrs. Bosler was treated at Princeton Hospital for a lacerated knee and contusion of the head. All cars were moved before Ptl. David Alston arrived. He made no charges.

West Windsor police have been unable to talk yet to a Bloomfield driver who was admitted to Princeton Hospital late Monday afternoon with back injuries and facial cuts, after his car was involved in a collision at the intersection of Village Road East and Old Trenton Road.

Police identified the injured driver as Joseph Lupton. The second driver going north on Old Trenton Road was John C. Bullard, 32, of Trenton. Charges are pending, following completion of the investigation by Ptl. Bruce Wauters.

John W. Coles Jr. of Franklin Corner Road, Lawrence Township, sustained extensive injuries early Sunday morning when his car struck a wall of the Stony Brook Bridge on Mercer Road.

His 1969 car then traveled off the right shoulder of Mercer Road into a large tree, damaging the entire front end. Ptl. Howard Sweeney investigated the 1:15 a.m. accident.

A nine-year-old bicyclist, Gordon N. Moehle, 240 Mount Lucas Road, received a bruised hip Saturday afternoon when he swerved in front of a car on Mount Lucas, one-quarter of a mile east of Mansgrove Road.

Ptl. Olindo Carnevale made no charges against the driver, Patrick K. Randall, 22, 182 Washington Street, Rocky Hill.

Planners May Act. The blackboard will probably be wiped clean Monday.

The Township Planning Board, at its regular public meeting, may erase from the Master Plan map the "school site" designation of the Hall-Hutson properties on Snowden Lane.

These were the lands the Princeton Regional School Board wanted to buy for a future elementary school. Defeat of the land-purchase referendum makes the school-site label on the map as pointless as last semester's homework.

Originally, the Planning Board stipulated that, if the referendum were defeated, the School Board itself would have to ask for nullification of the "school-site" resolution. However, the planners have never received from the school board any formal notification of the September 23 referendum defeat, and Hans K. Sander, Planning Board chairman, suggests the planners will proably go ahead and clean the slate themselves.

Elimination of the designation is a legal rather than cartographic matter: the board figured it would wait until the referendum actually passed before inking in the Master Plan map. Since the referendum was defeated, nothing has to be erased except the board's resolution.

MINI-GRANTS AWARDED

For Teacher Projects. Princeton public school teachers have received five of the 29 Mini-Grants awarded throughout the state by the New Jersey State Department of Education for "innovative teaching techniques, methods, devices or patterns."

Mini-grants are so called because all are under $1,000. Money is deposited by the state with the local board of education for teachers to use. These are the recipients.

Mrs. Rosemary Hausdoerffer of Johnson Park for "learning stations" in the new open-space classrooms established at the school this fall by removing several partitions ($997); Lou Cicchini art teacher at Riverside and Lawrence Mansier, English teacher at Princeton High, for a project in which second-graders and high school students will work together making live and animated films, with sound, about those old second-grade friends, the "community helpers" — mailmen, policemen etc.

Miss Kathleen Jones of John Witherspoon, will receive $450 for a science study of pendulums designed by the Elementary Science Study Group of Physicists. Mrs. Marian Kimberly, reading specialist at Valley Road, will pay high school students in remedial reading classes to write material that will be used for Middle School youngsters who are also having reading difficulties. Of the $543 granted to Mrs. Kimberly, $169 is for equipment and $174 for payments to students.

The final Mini-Grant is for Mrs. Miriam Ringel's high school "Workshop 7." In this class, 35 high school student volunteers will work toward "direct implementation of the PHS school philsophy: to gain in self understanding; to develop one's full potential and to increase the awareness of self in relation to the environment."

The $999 grant will be used for speakers, museum fees, books and equipment.

HELD FOR GRAND JURY

Aftermath of Gambling Raid. In Borough criminal court last week, Dorothy M. Hacher, 59, 9 Shirley Court, and Robert W. Burnham, 48, 188 Witherspoon Street, each waived a preliminary hearing and were held in $6,000 bail for action

We Support The October 15 Moratorium

A Public Statement To The Voters Of Princeton

BY

Golda Gottlieb and Richard Bergman

Democratic Candidates For Township Committee

Our personal feelings against the wor in Vietnam are well known. This senseless, needless, and immoral wreckage of lives must be stopped.

The wor affects our daily living. We cannot talk about problems of youth and drugs in Princeton without feeling keenly the dislocation of our lives and those of our children.

We cannot campaign for election to Township Committee without learning how many of our citizens of all political persuasions are turned off—turned off political involvement because they no longer believe what they do matters.

The lines between locol, stote and federal government are blurred. We must attack community, regional and state problems with citizen involvement. We need funds to implement constructive progroms.

It is up to Princeton to show that we will select leaders who care about all the issues that affect the people of this community.

by a Mercer County Grand Jury.

Kuch was charged with three gambling offenses following a raid on the Hatcher home September 20 by Mercer County detectives in possession of number slips, maintaining a gambling resort and working for a bettors. County detective John F. Marut, who led the raid, was the complainant.

In another case stemming from the same raid, Jay Craig of Shirley Court, was fined $55 for interfering with a police officer. Craig pleaded guilty to entering the Hatcher home after the arrests and starting an argument with the police.

A hearing for probable cause for Milton P. Broadway 23, 58 Leigh Avenue was heard, and Judge Theodore T. Tams Jr.

found there was cause to hold the defendant over for a Grand Jury.

Broadway has been charged by Sgt. John S. Bellow of the Borough police with contravention of a robbery on the University campus September 12. Two Princeton brothers were killed leaving the scene in an accident on U.S. 1. He had been held in Mercer County Jail in $2,500 bail in the interim.

RECORDING GEAR TAKEN From Nassau Inn Room. Two radio-recorders valued at $100 each and a $25 microphone were stolen between 5:40 Saturday afternoon and 8 Sunday morning from the General Mercer Room at the Nassau Inn.

Borough police said that the owner of the equipment was William L. Bullock Jr. of 108 Leigh Avenue. One of the recorders was recovered later behind the fence of the construction site adjacent to Firestone Library and returned to Mr. Bullock.

A Princeton University security officer called police Sunday to report the theft of two cameras and $2 in cash from an unlocked room at 124 Walker Hall on Campus.

The cameras were valued at $385. Police identified the owner as William Rodman.

Mrs. Armaud Borel of 106 Battle Road Circle last week reported the theft of a $70 stereo set from the dash of her car parked in the University Store lot.

"I can't count how many of those things have been stolen," Chief Peter J. McCrohan remarked.

A two square foot bronze plaque was stolen last week from an outside wall of the Princeton University Press building on William Street.

The plaque commemorated the contributions that Charles Scribner, Class of 1875, had made to the Press. "It was quite valuable," Chief McCrohan said.

SEVEN ARE FINED In Township Court. Seven Princeton area motorists were fined last week by Judge Burton Peskin in Township traffic court.

Charles W. Edwards, 21, a Princeton University student, was fined $100 after he pleaded guilty to operating a car without the owner's consent. A student at the Westminster Choir College, John A. McCormack, 21, was fined $15 for failure to keep right. Russell V. Way Jr., 28, 234 Moore Street, also paid $15 for the same offense.

Driving 55 in a 25-mile zone cost William M. McVeigh, 26 Scott Avenue, Princeton Junction, $35. Paying fines of $15 each were William Meir, 26, 2661 Main Street, Lawrenceville, careless driving; Willie A. Grady, 51, 144 Witherspoon

FUNDS SOUGHT

For Princeton Hospital. Princeton Hospital is seeking $325,000 in its annual fund appeal which opened October 1 when some 20,000 families in the tri-county area were mailed a letter requesting funds as part of the hospital's golden jubilee celebration.

In the 50 years of its existence, the hospital has come from a small town, largely emergency-first aid station to a comprehensive general health care center with 241 beds. As indicated in the letter by George W. Conover, president of the board of trustees and George R. Webster, chairman of the board's resources committee, "Much has been accomplished but more remains to be done. Unfortunately the charges we make for services rendered do not provide us with the means to grow with the population and to keep up with the astounding increase of medical knowledge.

"We must appeal to the Princeton community for capital gifts so that we can attempt to fulfill our goal of providing the highest possible caliber of health care. The funds will be used for a wide range of high priority improvements," they said.

The solicitation letters were mailed to residents in more than 20 communities regularly served by the hospital.

A committee has been appointed from the medical and dental staff by Dr. Ellwood W. Godfrey, president, to aid in the appeal. They are Doctors William H. Burchfield, Charles H. Place, David J. Rose and Edwin D. Rogers.

Trustees and other members of the hospital serving Mr. Webster include Richard W. Baker, Jr., James Carey, Arthur N. Curtiss, Frederick P. Lawrence, Ralph S. Mason, Mrs. Richard Schoch, Frank E. Taplin, John C. Whitwell and Mrs. William L. Wilson. Mrs. William Adamson, Jr. represents the Women's Auxiliary, while representatives from the community-at-large are George R. Cook, 3rd, and Albridge C. Smith, 3rd.

FUND SEEKS $55,000

For Youth Center. The Princeton Youth Fund launches an appeal in behalf of the Princeton Youth Center this week. The goal is $55,000 to cover costs for the 18 month period ending at the close of 1970.

All resources of the Youth Fund will be allocated to the Center this year. If the goal is reached, the Center will have proved itself eligible for inclusion thereafter in the Princeton United Fund.

A joint statement issued by mayors Henry Patterson of the Borough and John Wallace said this week, "we urge the citizens of Princeton to contribute generously. The Youth Center is a very important facility within the Princeton community and one that is very worth while supporting."

The Youth Center recently appointed Ralph Mitchell, 27, as executive director. A graduate of Knoxville College with a degree in education, and a former lieutenant in the Army, he has had experience in working with urban youth through the Boy Scout organization. New, professionally-led programs in guidance, family, involvement and leadership development are planned at the Center.

Plans are also under way to refurbish the old Witherspoon Street building to make it maximally attractive to youth, as well as functional for their activities. The building formerly housed the Borough engineering department.

Tiling, painting, wiring, gardening and plumbing projects are planned. The Center has already received gifts of shrubs and flowers from the Stoneybook Garden Club.

The Youth Center officers include Carole Taylor, secretary and the Rev. Marion Stokes, treasurer. The 32-member volunteer board represents the united black and white Princeton community.

Activities at the Center are those that the youth have asked for and designed — extracurricular social, recreational, athletic and creative pursuits that go beyond the high school. It is endorsed by Princeton High School and the Borough and Township governments, and receives practical assistance from many local businessmen.

Contributions to the Center may be sent to Princeton Youth Fund, Box 431, Princeton 08540.

Junction Lot to Close

The Princeton Junction parking lot closest to the westbound tracks of the Penn-Central Railroad — the Princeton side — will be closed next Wednesday, Thursday and Friday for repaving.

West Windsor Chief of Police Francis Maguire urges all commuters to double up by forming car pools, or have someone drop them off and pick them up. Those who must use their own cars are urged to arrive as early in the morning as possible.

The police are trying, in the meantime, to find a temporary alternate parking area. Extra patrolmen will be on duty to assist the commuter drivers during the three days.

TRESPASS by FLETCHER KNEBEL

Fletcher Knebel will autograph his new best selling novel 2-5 p.m. on Wednesday, October 15, at the Princeton Book Mart.

An attractive Princeton couple returns home one evening to find a young black man has taken over. That's the beginning of TRESPASS, Fletcher Knebel's novel of the day. Black militants make their most desperate movements, not in the ghettos, schools or public buildings, but in the time honored sanctuary of white America, the private home.

All Welcome. Come and Meet the Author.

WE CARE

It takes Care, Time and Hard Work to solve the problems of key concern to Princeton Borough.

These problems include...

(1) TRAFFIC
(2) MIDDLE-INCOME HOUSING
(3) YOUTH ACTIVITIES
(4) PARKING

and there are others, too.

How do we go about solving these problems?

First, we seek out your opinions. Over 800 Borough residents responded to our questionnaire on key issues facing the community.

Next, we have appointed committees of talented citizens to study such problems as...

— housing — town-gown relations
— transportation — Nassau St. traffic
— youth programs — taxes

COMMITTED RESPONSIVE PROGRESSIVE

Third, your candidates have met with representatives of all sections of the community in order to develop effective, responsive programs for Princeton Borough. One result of such efforts is the announcement in this issue of our position on tax reform and how we can meet local needs without increasing your real estate taxes.

Yes, it takes Time, Hard Work and CARE!

NO TO RED CROSS

Yes To Law Offices: In decisions reached Monday night, the Borough Zoning board denied the application of the Princeton Chapter of the Red Cross to move its headquarters to 21 Markham Road, but approved that of Sydney Souter to move his law offices to historic Beatty Holuse, 19 Vandeventer.

In ruling against the Princeton Red Cross, the oldest (1914) chapter in the State, the board found that a more reasonable location could be used one less restricted than the R 3 zone of Markham Road and that the proposed use would change the character of the neighborhood.

Dr John Womak, 32 Markham presented a letter signed by 16 neighbors opposing the move Of the 23 he looked for, 16 or about 70 percent signed, he said

Apparently the board decided that it was more important to keep historic Beatty House, built in the late 18th century, from becoming an apartment house than it was to prevent a non-permitted use from entering an R-4 zone.

It made a recommendation to Borough Council that the applicant be granted a use variance to allow the home to be converted into law offices and one apartment, "in order to preserve a structure of historic significance."

It tacked on two conditions, however: that no more than five lawyers use the office space and that no other business or office use be allowed if the home changed hands.

Realtor William Stewardson testified that the house had been for sale by the owner, Lester Slatoff, for more than a year for $60,000 and he estimated it would take an additional $15,000 to turn it into a single family residence. "It's hard to figure even someone in Princeton willing to do that in that location," he said.

Architect Jeremiah Ford III told the board the house was one of five left in Princeton built in the 1780's. The others: Bainbridge House, MacLean on campus, Male's Book Store and 159 Nassau Street, the only one still a single family house.

In a third case the board approved continuing a previous non conforming use at 157 Witherspoon Street. In effect, it permitted owner Paul Harvey to rent the first floor to Country Farms Store, now located at 205 Witherspoon Street.

The store would occupy more than the allowable percentage of space in a residential business area. The second floor would be used as an apartment.

No Decision On Condominium. After conferring into early morning, the board was unable to reach a decision on the application of a New Brunswick man to build a 90-house condominium at North Harrison Street and Hamilton Avenue.

The board must wrestle with legal questions and questions of interpretation of the zoning laws (for example, when the authors of the new zoning code listed restrictions for attached and multiple dwellings, did they have a condominium in mind? It isn't spelled out.)

The board is reported to be evenly split on the application. It was further hampered when one of the members who heard the case failed to appear. Another is due to travel to Japan for a month.

"We just don't know where we stand at this point," said the zoning officer.

POLITICS

In Borough. Some tax reform that would let towns tap tax resources besides real estate were proposed this week by the three Republican candidates for Borough office — Robert Cawley for mayor, Charles Cornforth and Christine St John for Council.

changes allowing municipalities to levy taxes other than real estate; more relief for senior citizens, many of whom live on fixed incomes; increased state subsidies to education and county government plus additional state taxation.

The candidates also warn that, in protecting the low-income taxpayer, government must not treat the middle-income homeowner unfairly. The three Republicans add that, in their recent survey of town opinion, they found "a sizable group" willing to pay more taxes for municipal improvement: traffic control, parking and the solution to drug problems.

On the drug situation, the Republicans state "to fight the drug problem effectively, we need a special group to assume overall responsibility." Mr. Cawley adds, "Failing an existing group assuming overall responsibility, the municipal governments themselves should assume it."

"More coordination," the candidates believe, is not enough. A group should be manned with professional people (police, schools, various social agencies and churches) to see that existing programs are truly effective.

Mr. Cawley urges "patience and a reasonable attitude in the spirit of the Inter-Faith Council's declaration" plus support of programs already underway. "Either by taxation or by contribution," citizen support is essential.

The candidates commend as "very encouraging" the plans of the Child Guidance Center and the Board of Education concerning drugs.

POLITICS

In Township. Taxes and rateables occupied Republican and Democratic candidates for Township Committee this week.

Republicans Dean Chace and incumbent John D. Wallace pointed with pride to the Township municipal tax rate for 1969: lower than in any year back to 1960.

Mr. Chace and Mr. Wallace state that rising property taxes in the Township are because of increases in school and county tax. "It is only the local tax for which Township Committee has any responsibility and it is only this tax that has been held in line for so many years."

The candidates list Community Park's recreation complex, new library, open space investments, new youth programs, larger police, engineering and administrative staffs, and then point to increased rateables "derived from construction of new . . . properties and from rising property values. Substantial additional rateables have been placed on our tax rolls this year which will permit us to keep pace with the ever-growing needs of the community."

Democratic opponents Golda Gottlieb and Richard Bergman urge establishment of a rateables commission "to attract a controlled number of research and development firms to Research Park . . . mandatory if we are to be able to continue to provide needed community services without unacceptable property tax increases."

Answering the Republicans' statement about keeping the local tax rate down, Mrs. Gottlieb and Mr. Bergman state: "We feel this is a short-sighted position in a decade which will see Princeton facing unprecedented problems such as drugs, youth, transportation and recreational opportunities. These problems require both imaginative approaches and money for their solution."

The Democrats charge that many firms decided on Montgomery Township because they couldn't find, in Princeton Township, "competitively priced facilities and parking."

Mrs. Gottlieb and Mr. Bergman also urge an expanded health district to provide services not now available in the Township. They claim that state programs, in an expanded health district could bring an additional $8,000 yearly in health programs to the municipality.

They cite programs for maternity and child health, public health nursing, screening for early detection of chronic disease and inspection of health conditions in rental housing as things which don't exist in the Township, or exist on a "voluntary reporting system" as in housing inspection.

JOIN THE PARTY

Meet a Candidate. Township Democrats will meet voters in various places over the next week. The public is invited to an apartment tour this Sunday from 2-5 p.m. (see ad, page 36, for list of addresses) sponsored by Committee candidates Golda Gottlieb and Richard Bergman.

The two candidates will be guests at a fund-raising cocktail party on October 24 at

CRANBURY TOUR PLANNED

Candlelight Concert Included. Cranbury will hold open house and a candlelight concert Sunday, October 19, displaying the town's historic traditions dating to the 18th century. From 1 to 5 p.m. houses illustrative of Cranbury's past and present will be open to the public.

These will include, among others, the Old Manse, built around 1750, the home of Commodore Truxton, commander of the Constitution, and a former barn, converted into a contemporary house by the present owner.

Incidental music will be heard in some of the houses, and refreshments will be available in the historic Cranbury Inn during the tour. At 5 p.m. a candlelight concert will be held in the Presbyterian Church. Music that might have been heard in 18th century Cranbury will be featured.

Terry Penner, a member of the Princeton University faculty, will sing rarely performed Scottish folk songs of Franz Josef Haydn, accompanied by David Kraehenbuehl, composer and pianist, Joseph Kovacs, violinist and conductor of the Princeton Symphony Orchestra and Arnold Kvam, cellist and chairman of Douglass College Music Department. The Princeton Madrigal Choir, conducted by Barbara Lewis, will also perform selections of choral music of early American composers.

Tickets at $3 per person will cover the entire day's events and are obtainable in advance from Mrs. William Hoffman, 26 North Main Street, Cranbury, 395-0657, or they may be purchased the day of the tour in front of the bank or at 10 Symmes Court. Proceeds will be allocated by the Cranbury Historical and Preservation Society toward establishment of a Cranbury Museum.

Trans World Airlines is planning a flight luncheon, which will be served by four airline stewardesses assisted by AFS members, and Mary Gordon, TWA flight fashion expert, will narrate the capsule show of easy-to-pack travel wear.

Six coeds from Princeton University, who were AFS exchange students, will join Eldred Midtun, a Norwegian AFS exchange student, in modeling dresses of the countries in which they lived. Music for the show will be played by Bill Woodrow.

SOMERSET TOUR SET

Factbook Published. The League of Women Voters of Somerset County is sponsoring a bus trip to points of interest in the county. Planned for Saturday, the program calls for a three-hour officially guided tour, to be concluded by a reception and refreshment period with the Board of Freeholders.

Buses will leave the parking area of the County Administration Building, Somerville, at 9:30 and return around noon. The itinerary will include stops at Duke Island Park, the Fairgrounds, Green Knoll Golf Course, and the future sites of the Community College and the vocational technical school.

A county official will be aboard each bus to answer questions, and at each stop an official will be present to explain facts of interest. Tours of the County Court House and the Administration Building will also be included.

Cost of the tour is $1.50 per person. Tickets may be obtained through the area branches of the League or from Mrs. Charles Henning, Jamestown Road, Belle Mead.

Factbook published. Area branches of the League of Women Voters have also sought to inform area residents about Somerset County through the publication of a comprehensive, 91-page, picture-filled booklet." This is Somerset County."

Based on months of research and personal interviews, the book offers complete and current information on county government and financing, public health, welfare, and education, on administration of justice, elections and political parties, as well as on roads, recreation and planning.

A historical sketch is included, and separately packaged in a back pocket is a newly issued oversized street map in color. The map alone retails at $1 but is included free in the $1 purchase price of the booklet, which will soon be on sale.

Mrs. Jon Baumunk, Mountain was editor and coordinator, assisted by Mrs. B. Thomas Leahy, Bound Brook, who was responsible for make-up and proofing, and a staff of ten researchers.

Why I Plan to Vote

REPUBLICAN

By John F. Hoff

John F. Hoff III, 41 Westcott Road, is a vice-president and director of the First National Bank, Princeton, and is currently chapter chairman of the Princeton Chapter, American Red Cross. His grandfather was a mayor of the Borough.

I will vote for Bob Cawley, as I know him to be a man of integrity, competence, and experience. Bob Cawley is a man who will be a mayor of not one party, not one profession, not one social class, but a great mayor of all the people.

At the present time I don't believe that party labels are important in choosing candidates for local office. What is important is what kind of a person the candidate is. Does he or she have the quality and qualifications which will be able to meet the many and varied demands with which the mayor of Princeton Borough must contend?

Bob Cawley's qualifications are superb. He is the Assistant Director of Research Administration at Western Electric. He has had the experience in a business setting of responsibility for considerable numbers of employees and sizable budgets. He is family for both with the problems of people and with the necessity of sound money management. These are two of the most important areas in which the mayor must be competent.

Bob has also been Vice President and Budget Chairman of the Princeton United Community Fund, where he has shown the ability to balance the needs of the charitable organizations in the community against its available resources. The parallel to the Mayor's job of balancing the local tax burden on the community with its legitimate needs is obvious. In short, I believe Bob will be able to balance needs against revenue in a sensible fashion, rather than spend our tax moneys out of all proportion to our problems.

I am fortunate to be currently associated with Bob in the Red Cross, where he serves as First Vice Chairman and Chairman of the Finance Committee of the local chapter. As a member of the Princeton Personnel Association, he was one of the prime movers in helping to establish the Princeton Red Cross Blood Program Group Plan, and he worked diligently to help formulate a workable plan, which now provides blood credit for employees of thirty six local firms. He has functioned as Chairman of the Operating Committee for this Blood Program since its inception in 1960. He has also served as a member of a committee for Northern New Jersey Red Cross Chapters to develop a Blood Program throughout this part of the state.

As a result of these efforts, Bob received national recognition by being chosen a member of the 1970 Nominating Committee of the American National Red Cross.

In my personal dealings with Bob, I have found him to have an exceptional ability to analyze a problem, discarding irrelevant facts. He has a strong sense of responsibility for fulfilling any obligation he undertakes. He carefully evaluates all sides before making any decision and gives genuine consideration to the opinions of others. Bob has the ability to stand by his own convictions, and he is that rare mixture of a sound business administrator and a warm hearted individual.

As a Borough resident, I think many of our problems are serious ones that need varied and fresh points of

DEMOCRATIC

By John F. McCarthy Jr.

John F. McCarthy Jr., 80 Westcott Road, is an attorney, member of the Princeton law firm of McCarthy, Bacsik, Hicks and Dix. He was Borough attorney for four years from 1958 to January, 1962.

I am going to vote for the Democratic candidates for Princeton Borough offices because I believe they bring the most responsible and creative ideas, and the greatest weight of experience, to local office. Princeton is a community in which the voter examines the merits of people and their ideas, rather than the claims of the party. While I feel the Republican candidate for Governor offers the best programs for New Jersey, close scrutiny of Alice Male, and of Robert Hendry and Martin Lombardo, local Democratic candidates, brings the conviction that they can best serve Princeton.

The long record of distinguished public service rendered this community by Alice Male, currently serving as a member of the Borough Council, is unmatched by any other persons currently active in political affairs. She is not simply an activist who likes to do things — she is a person of great integrity who has found repeatedly that fulfilling her responsibilities has required her to work through public groups.

As a mother she became active in Parent Teacher affairs and eventually was named president of the P.T.A. at Princeton High. Her interest in the quality of human life in Princeton led to her membership on the Council of Community Services, and to her participation in the founding of Youth Employment Service. She served as the first President of the Youth Center's Adult Board. Earlier this year the Council of Community Services named her the 1969 recipient of the annual "Community Service Award." Her involvement in the management of a small retail business has given her knowledge of the problems of the downtown commercial area.

Robert Hendry is a candidate for re-election, and his service over the past three years demonstrates the importance of returning him to office. Hendry is the Council's financial conscience, the only trained and experienced financial manager serving in local government. It was Hendry who led the fight to obtain the first seed money grant for Princeton Community Housing by a Borough Council vote stating that the need for such housing exists. It was Hendry who continued his insistence on planned purchasing of major capital items such as fire equipment.

This year as police commissioner and his service on the Regional Development Association since its organization, gives him major responsibility for two areas in which public funds will continue to be expended — public safety and regional planning.

Martin Lombardo follows that same tradition of service to the community. In the Scouting movement he became an assistant district commissioner in Trenton, because leadership was more scarce in that urban center than in Princeton. As a member of the Princeton Jaycees, as a young man who has achieved the recognition of a national health organization for his work in enlisting youth for public service, he offers unique talent to the town.

These are three individuals who are Princeton people, and who desire to service Princeton and Princeton's people. They have energy, devotion, the wisdom of experience, and the demonstrated ability to balance growing human needs and the community's resources. This is new leadership for the new decade of the 1970's. I plan to vote for them, and I am confident that the majority of the Borough's citizens will join me in supporting them.

Town Topics reaches every home and place of business served by the Princeton post office. By their own figures no other Princeton newspaper does half as well.

The show will be held at The Jewish Center, 435 Nassau Street, on Thursday, October 16, at 7:30 p.m.

CENTER CITY VS. SUBURB

Adult School Topic. Thursday, October 9, at 8 p.m., the Princeton Adult School will hold another in its series of lectures on urban dynamics. The topic is The Central City vs. the Suburbs, presented by Lyle C. Fitch, president of the Institute of Public Administration and former first deputy city administrator and then city administrator of New York City.

He will talk about the relationship, problems, and interdependence of the city and its surrounding areas. Dr. Fitch, who has a Ph.D. from Columbia University in economics, has been on the faculty of a number of universities and colleges, has served as a special assistant to the Governor of Connecticut and Mayor of New York, and is presently directing a study of problems of urban poverty for the Committee for Economic Development.

At the 9 p.m. Music of the Baroque Period series, Eugene Road of the Westminster Choir College will cover the organ music of that period.

view for solutions. I doubt that a "native born Princetonian" is any more qualified to find solutions than a relative new comer who has the advantage of living in different places and going through different experiences. We have been facing for too long certain of our problems, such as, traffic and parking, and I believe that Bob Cawley has the vision and the desire to explore all possible alternatives, which are needed qualities in our Borough government.

Should Mrs. Male, Bob's opponent win, we shall not only lose the opportunity of having Bob as our mayor, but we shall also have to face an additional unknown, as Mrs. Male will then have the right, as mayor, to appoint her successor on the Borough Council.

I am sure that Princeton Borough would benefit more by having the services of these two people who have expereesed their interest in government by volunteering to run for mayor, rather than having the services of one volunteer and one unknown.

I have made my decision. I hope on November 4th you will join me in voting for Bob Cawley for Borough Mayor.

Housing Situation Reviewed.

To the Editor of Town Topics:

Many citizens are understandably confused by all the recent talk of public, private and non-profit housing plans for our community. A short review is probably in order to help us understand what it is we have and what it is we do not have.

For example, in the Township, there is at present no housing at all for low-income people. The new Master Plan does admit to a need for at least 200 low and moderate income dwelling units but it will take non-profit organizations such as PCH and the Housing Authority to make this a reality. (Those, incidentally, who fear such housing as unsightly have only to look at the Boro's low-income housing for the elderly on No. Harrison St. to be reassured. In fact, this project won a national award for good design and attractive setting.)

The Boro's low-income projects, however, all have long waiting lists and its supply of reasonable rentals has also been exhausted. Only recently a private builder has proposed a cluster development of 90 semi-attached units on No. Harrison and Hamilton Ave. Even if allowed, while it may turn out more attractive than the usual development, the starting prices of 36,000 and up are not designed for families earning 10,000 and under.

Since Township zoning excludes multiple dwellings, there is essentially no place there either for the moderate-income wage-earner. So, the plight of the schoolteacher, the secretary, the sales person, the newly married and the elderly remains as yet unanswered.

Yet these are vital to the economic and social base of Princeton as a town. Without making it possible for these people to continue to live here, Princeton will lose its characteristics of diversity and self-containment and turn into just another high-priced bedroom community.

The current debate concerning PCH's plans for non-profit sponsored middle-income housing reflects some of the deepest divisions in American society today. It revolves around how far beyond their own apparent immediate interests people are able to extend their concern. It involves questions about the values we hold basic to the quality of American life. Is the affluent neighbor necessarily the most desirable? Is a homogenized society the best?

We must ask, for example, why there is so much discussion about insuring restrictions upon those who will live in PCH housing when it would be considered unthinkable to similarly discuss the qualities of "outsiders" who buy Princeton's expensive homes.

We are suffering from a kind of hardening of the arteries. For the last 20 years, with the money to be made in building and selling large-lot single-family dwellings, and with the lack of planning for all its citizens that has hitherto characterized local government, Princeton has forced out many of its own as they grew old, or as they grew up but could find no reasonable rentals, or as patterns of racial prejudice solidified on the housing front.

We have to face that, too. A Sunday nod of approval for equal opportunity in housing is the worst hypocrisy if not followed by support for State and Federally-aided programs to build low - moderate income housing here.

It will not be suburbia vs. everyone else forever. Sooner or later the courts will knock down the type of restrictive zoning we have today and the rush will be on by the profit-seekers to despoil the land.

The wisest defense for a town such as Princeton, is orderly planning now. To keep Princeton attractive and yet answer to housing needs of the future is still possible. Aiding non - profit organizations to build multiple dwellings for low and moderate income groups would be a positive, forward-looking step in this direction, and election time is a crucial time for these programs. Examine the candidates' commitment and attitudes towards the implementation of such housing, and vote accordingly.

Suggestions to School Board.

To the Editor of Town Topics:

Had our letters been published last week the need for this response might possibly have been avoided.

We have carefully read the correspondence between ourselves, legal counsel, and the School Board. We do not agree with the statements concerning our negotiations with the School Board. However, we do not feel that the community can benefit from a verbal exchange as to who said what and what was meant.

We are deeply concerned with the welfare of the Princeton School System and with the welfare of the property owners of the community. It is a fact that twice within approximately two years the School Board has been defeated at the polls. We fail to see how this negative voter response can be of value to Princeton education or to the community as a whole.

To aid the School Board in its public relations we, as interested property owners, propose the following:

1. A committee should be formed to work closely with the proper authorities to set minimum guidelines to insure a measure of protection to the land values of all properties adjacent to proposed or already purchased 20 acre school sites, especially when land is to stand idle for a number of years.

When the specific building site is unknown the full sale value of all adjacent homes and properties is in jeopardy. No one objects to living near a school but few people would willingly choose to live with a school building in close proximity to their home and property line.

2. These set guidelines must insure that never again may the School Board publicly disrupt negotiations of the sale of land without first notifying the property owners.

By doing this to us the Board caused a needless, awkward situation for all concerned parties. In addition, financial loss in terms of taxes, legal fees, and interest on capital already tied up for nearly six months has been a burden, and would be for any property owner.

After the referendum, when the final tally was known, the following quotes by Dr. Marks appeared in the news media: "The Board must now discuss the defeat." After voting later, "the Board decided not to pursue the referendum but to concentrate on long range planning." "Much as we might need a new school, the voters decided it will not be in the Snowden area." On October 2 TOWN TOPICS quoted Dr. Marks, "In any case your land (Hutson Hall Fisher) can now be sold to any man ready to buy it."

In view of the above statements we trust that the School Board will in no way prevent the sale of our land. We have two buyers awaiting release of our land so that it can be sold.

How to Rescue Small Animals.

To the Editor of Town Topics:

Several months ago I picked up two deserted puppies. They were lovely and loving. Unfortunately I couldn't keep them so I took them to Mrs. Graves of the Small Animal Rescue League.

She was wonderful and helped me by finding good homes for both of them.

To all who read this let me say, "If you find a deserted dog or cat, please call Mrs. Graves first. I'm sure she will find a home for them."

I surely am grateful!

Problem Well Solved.

To the Editor of Town Topics:

Please print this as a public service, so that other people who might find themselves in similar circumstances, might benefit.

Recently, I had the sad duty of giving up the apartment of my deceased mother and of looking for a home for the cat which had been the elderly lady's constant companion during her last years.

Kind neighbors of hers had been feeding the animal for a couple of weeks, but he had no real home any more. He is a nice, clean, gentle sort, and he deserves good care. I called the Small Animal Rescue League, Kingston Road, Princeton.

Within an hour, a lady came with a cage, the cat was caught, and for a small contribution, she agreed to look for a home for him. Within two weeks this homeless little fellow had found a new home eight miles from Princeton with people who will take good care of him.

Thank you, kind lady and Small Animal Rescue League!

ART
In Princeton

FROM MODERN ITALY

Show on View Here. Gallery 100 waves the Italian flag this month as it presents a show which combines three totally diverse types of work, each in its own way reflecting aspects of current Italian life.

There are watercolors by Clara Sawyer Shepard, an American Italophile; lithographs by Leonardo Cremonini, a native Bolognese, and mosaics by a group of artists indigenous to the Lungarno, Florence. This particular selection was made by Mrs. George Adriance of Princeton who spent several weeks in Italy as an art consultant to Gallery 100.

Mrs. Shepard, definitely the senior exhibitor at eighty-seven, begins her artistic biography by referring to herself "a great-grandmother who ran away from a retirement home in Portland, Oregon to paint in Italy." She began painting at eighty three and ever since has charged about Venice, Florence, Positano, Rome and Sicily, finding scenes to record in her primitive fashion in very bright colors.

Her compositions are either as completely static as her description of a gondola on a Venetian canal, or as hectic and casual as her scattered arrangement of color blocks building a hill town cluster. The naivete and enthusiasm in all the watercolors show this great-granny to be quite a character.

We cannot help noticing that the superb framing of these paintings have further implemented their decorative value. The gallery has used liners and frames in matching or complementary color, and in one case, for a painting on rice paper, the texture has been emphasized by a red board backing which gives an interesting rosy glow. As usual, this is a good job of presentation.

ART BUYER IN RESIDENCE: Jane Adriance came home to Princeton from a spring trip to Italy with paintings, lithographs and mosaics for Gallery 100 — and the warmest memories to keep for herself.

Cremonini. Leonardo Cremonini was born in Bologna in 1925 and studied at the Academy of Fine Arts of the Brera Museum in Milan. In an abstract way, he meditates on contemporary Italian life. As a result, some of his impressions are easier to decipher than others. The effect of a sun-soaked beach on bathers is pretty obvious, and so is the suggestion of "La Notte Calda" in steamy-warm purple-pinks. But the relationship of a distorted figure to a manipulated surface mood is somewhat vague and maybe just too "mysterious."

The lithographs are signed originals, in limited edition, and have been selected from the Bisonte Workshop in Florence. Among many American and European collections in which Cremonini is represented are two close to home; The Museum of Modern Art in New York and the Stanely J. Seeger, Jr. Collection of Princeton University.

Marble Mosaic. A traditional blend of fine workmanship with true sense of design and color is the mark of several mosaic pieces from a Florentine bottega. Natural marbles in fantastic colors, both vivid and sparkling, mottled and opaque, are tenderly arranged with exquisite simplicity.

A single pear or apple, split in half against a soft background makes a charming decoration. The stones of a still life arrangement have a surprising range of color which turns into form by the happy accident of its very own nature. Two fish, shot with iridescent colors, bespeak the underwater light. These are little collector "gems" each with an intriguing admonition attached; "to polish, use neutral shoe polish."

AT STATE MUSEUM

Ben Shahn. An exhibition of Ben Shahn works, the first since the artist's death, is being held at the New Jersey State Museum through November 16. The show includes more than fifty paintings dating from 1929 to the '60's and two mosaic murals, purchased by the State Museum last year and being shown now for the first time.

The Shahn exhibit is part of a continuous series in the museum. The art exhibits are just one phase of the museum's total program. In its three buildings, main museum, planetarium and auditorium, the museum offers science exhibitions, extension services, school work, laboratory research and collection activities. The art exhibits involve many forms of expression including painting, sculpture, photography, decorative art and handicraft.

The Museum is open to the public from 9 to 5 daily except Sunday, when the hours are 2 to 5.

Dan Honig

PEOPLE In The News

TWO YEARS IN MEXICO

Dan Honig Aided Farmers. Dan Honig has returned to college this fall, after two years of working with Mexican farmers, as a volunteer in the Youth Service Opportunities Program of the American Friends Service Committee.

The son of Mr. and Mrs. Richard E. Honig, 99 Dempsey Avenue, Dan had attended Cornell University for one year and then was drafted as a conscientious objector when he refused to accept a student deferment.

"I didn't think it was correct for guys who didn't go to college to be drafted while students were deferred," he said. His two years of work in Mexico was his alternative service assignment.

The AFSC project to which Dan was attached first helped build a school in Xocunoxtle, the village where the project was stationed. While in Mexico Dan got into two other major areas working on a school in the village of Laguna Prieta and an animal distribution program.

One project undertaken by Dan aimed at improving the livestock of the area around Xocunoxtle by bringing in purebred animals from the United States. Dan also introduced rabbits to provide more meat for the people.

"Why rabbits and not chickens or turkeys?" "Turkeys and chickens are subject to a lot of diseases," Dan explained. "Rabbits have few natural diseases; they reproduce like crazy as they are easy to keep and feed, and their meat is more nutritious than any other kind of animal's."

Sixteen purebred goats and four purebred pigs were obtained through the Heifer Project Inc. Through the project, farmers in the United States donate animals which are then distributed all over the world.

In the long run," Dan said, "that may be more effective than the introduction of the rabbits. When the purebred animals are crossed with a common animal the off-spring are hardier and have better milk and meat characteristics," he added.

Other activities of the YSO Program in Mexico included showing agricultural films to villagers, building latrines and helping set up bee-keeping operations.

The best effect, according to Dan, was that we made a good name for America. Some of the men had come to the United States as migrant workers. I think they were generally discriminated against."

"They were really amazed that white, middle class Americans would come and help them," he continued.

Dan is now attending Swarthmore College.

YSOP is one of the programs of the American Friends Service Committee designed to provide Americans with opportunities to demonstrate their concerns in line with the Quaker faith.

a double exposure to delight.

Last April, Jane Adriance went to Rome and Florence for Gallery 100. Her trove is now on view at Gallery 100: 23 of "Great-grandma Clara Shepherd's" paintings, a collection of charming pictures in marble mosaics and half a dozen signed lithographs from the graphic artist Cremonini. (See above.)

"I wanted a cross section which would appeal to many tastes and interests," she says, in describing her collection. Then she adds with regret, "I wish I could have picked up some sculpture, but the artists all work in bronze or onyx or marble and the things are just too heavy to ship. And too expensive for people to buy!"

Mrs. Adriance also brought back, but not for Gallery 100, a broken leg. She was tripped by a taxi in London and spent six days in the orthopedic ward of St. George's Hospital. "It's one way to meet the natives of a country. . ." she smiles.

The commission from Gallery 100 came about because John Borden, who owns the Gallery, knew she was going to Rome anyway to visit a friend. "Why not find some things for us?" he asked.

Before leaving Princeton, Mrs. Adriance obtained artists' names from a sculptor she knew who had been studying in Rome. And, although she couldn't bring sculpture back with her, she did visit a foundry and four sculptor's studios.

"In the mornings, I'd go to the wonderful Roman markets with my friend and we'd do all the tourist things. Then in late afternoon, I'd visit art lists."

"I discovered 'Great grandma Shepherd' in my friend's apartment. She had two of Mrs. Shepherd's watercolors, and I found them so gay and decorative and — well, so Italian! But I didn't know how to reach the artist. So my friend telephoned around, because I don't speak Italian, and we found Eugene Walter, who carries Mrs. Shepherd's work."

"Well, I went to his apartment — cats all over the place, even sitting on her paintings! and he would shoo them off, and he even had paintings hanging all over the walls of the bathroom. I walked out of the apartment carrying 23 of her things rolled up under my arm."

Several months later, Mrs. Adriance discovered that Hal Burnett, also of Gallery 100, spent the summer in art school in Positano, Italy, with Mrs. Shepherd jogging off with her to classes each morning in a donkey cart and never knowing that Gallery 100 had just acquired a collection of her paintings.

From Rome, Mrs. Adriance went to Florence carrying a list of names given her by a friend in the art department of Princeton University.

"I got the portfolio of Cremoniol lithographs in the Bisonte workshop," and the excitement of that visit is still in her voice. "Artists go there to make their own stones and pull their own prints — Alexander Calder worked here, and Henry Moore and Gino Severini and Picasso."

"The marble mosaics I found in a shop on the Arno. Really, this is the most wonderful way to visit Italy. I'd been there before, but never in a capacity like this." She reflects for a moment — "we are so starved for beauty in this country. Italy is not only so beautiful, but the Italians have an inate taste, an intuitive knowledge of when to stop: you don't find the countryside contaminated as it is here. The little hill towns Mrs. Shepherd has caught so wonderfully — that's the way they are, unspoiled."

An artist with a fine arts major in college, Mrs. Adriance hasn't done much painting of her own in recent years. She did, however, sketch while she was in Italy because she couldn't help it.

Back in her Newlin Road home, with her husband George and their 10 and 12 year-old sons, she thinks ahead to a return visit.

"I feel that I have to go back!" she laughs. "The crutches they gave me when I broke my leg say on them 'Please return to St. George's Hospital!'"

ISRAELI ART DISPLAYED

Benefit Sale Planned. The art of Israel will de displayed in a new collection at an art show and sale planned for October 26. from 11 to 6 at the Fireplace Room of Wilson Hall, Peddie School, Hightstown. All proceeds will go to the Hadassah Medical Organization, a comprehensive program of healing, teaching and research in Israel.

The art show will reflect the trends of Israel art today and also depicts the growth of the nation. In cooperation with the Murray S. Greenfield Galleries in Tel Aviv and New York, the Hightstown Roosevelt chapter of Hadassah is bringing a collection that has in it both old timers and also newcomers.

Dizenhoff prize winners, the highest prize for art in Israel, such as Ruven Rubin and Ruth Schloss, will be represented in various media. A number of artists shown are members of Kibbutzim, and their work generally reflects their special view of life.

ART IN YARN

Artist Exhibits Work. "Paintings" executed in yarn will be on display through October at the New School for Music Study, Nassau off Harrison.

The artist is Deborah Neuman, Israeli artist who has lived in this country for the past five years. She describes herself as "without formal training in art," a housewife, mother who turned to art to occupy her mind and time.

Working first with acrylics, watercolors or oils, she later turned to "painting" flowers, animals, landscape and people in colored yarns.

RUNNING ATTACK MISSING

Offensive Line Inadequate

Princeton's football team will head for Ithaca this weekend hopeful of finding the Tiger's traditional bread and butter. If it is to make any sort of run for the 1969 Ivy title, the Orange and Black must locate—and quickly—the sure fire ground game that has for a quarter century been the hallmark of good Princeton football.

For the second week in a row, an opponent with a hatful of problems of its own should give the rebuilding Tigers a chance to run in a manner that will make them a contender when they come up against the likes of Penn, Harvard and Dartmouth. Off their painfully slow process of creating a solid offensive line, however, they are the slimmest sort of favorites over a Cornell eleven which is widely expected to have troubles staying out of the cellar. Game time in Saturday's contest is 2 p.m.

The tip off on Princeton's problems came Saturday at Baker Field, where a young, thoroughly inexperienced Columbia eleven held the Tigers scoreless for the first half before it was beaten, 21 to 7, largely by its own mistakes. Statistics don't always lie:

● Playing in the same backfield are Brian McCullough, who led the Ivy League in rushing as a sophomore and Ellis Moore, who is almost certainly the best fullback in the league. Against a Columbia defense that all but collapsed against a run of the mill Lafayette team, McCullough and Moore barely averaged three yards per carry.

● In the fourth quarter, with Columbia desperately hoping to erase the visitors' slim 14-7 lead, the Tigers came into possession three times and never once managed a first down. Each time, they were forced to kick, regaining possession only because the Lions' sophomore quarterbacks were far short of the ability that future Ivy opponents will provide against the Orange and Black.

The conversion from single wing to T has understandably pared McCullough's and Moore's effectiveness as the new attack is pieced together, but the real problem is the almost total lack of adequate blocking. This is so in both the interior line and in the open field, and until it materializes, the 1969 season for the Tigers will hang on the brink of disaster.

Defense Still Has Problems.

Complicating the situation is the inability—for the second week in a row—of the defense to measure up to expectations. On the third play of the game, Columbia fullback Kevin Brown shot through the right side of the Princeton line, going 36 yards to the Tiger 19 before safetyman Keith Mahney hauled him down. The threat ended when an attempted field goal from 30 yards out was barely short, but that right side of the line took considerable punishment much of the afternoon.

Brown wound up as the day's top runner, with 107 yards and a 7.2 average to his credit, further underscoring the Tigers' problems when such figures are contrasted to the manner in which McCullough and Moore were shackled. The Lions actually outgained Princeton in rushing, an unheard of achievement in the one sided series which has seen the Orange and Black dominate the rivalry ever since 1915.

The understandably harassed Jake McCandless does have one thing going for him at the moment: at the outset of the season, he declared his intention of improving Princeton's passing game, and it was almost solely on this factor that the Tigers won. Quarterback Scott MacBean hit 12 of 20 for 172 yards and two touchdowns and his accurate put-ins to McCullough and end Mark Bross did much to pave the way for the victors' other score.

The defense did redeem itself in the work done to pare down Columbia's passing. The losers' two sophomore quarterbacks were held to 14 of 30 for 84 yards and there were six eral occasions when they were tackled before they could get rid of the ball.

Breaks Decide Game. Almost all the good fortune that developed during the drawout contest came Princeton's way—in fact, all three of its touchdowns were made possible by a pair of fumbles and a costly offside penalty against the Lions.

The visitors' first score of the season came midway through the third quarter, when tackle Tom Hutchinson fell on a ball that end Jim Nixon had jarred loose and MacBean took the Tigers in in three plays, Moore and McCullough were stopped for no gain, but on third and ten, flanker back Pete Hauck broke the prescribed pattern on a pass play so well that he was wholly unguarded in the end zone as he took MacBean's aerial.

The second opportunity came after a drive had stalled on the Princeton 49 and Moore punted. The Lions were off side, however, and given a second chance, the Tigers again went the distance. Moore took the ball over from a yard out on a T formation dive, thus burying the old wedge play in the graveyard of yesteryear.

Columbia promptly got back in the ball game by going 65 yards in nine plays, on a number of which Princeton looked bad. It yielded 20 yards on a fourth and eight pass, and then was completely taken on a pitchout that covered the final ten yards.

Thereafter, the Lions had three chances to draw even as the Orange and Black failed to run out the clock with possession type ground game. The pressure was too great for the losers, however, and they never broke out beyond their 40 yard line. When an Ellis Moore kick bounced against one of their linemen and Princeton recovered on the Lion ten, the Tigers got their third TD on a MacBean to Biros pass. Arnie Holtberg converted all three extra points.

QUICK LOOK AT CORNELL

OFFENSE: Hinges almost 100% around ability of sophomore Ed Marinaro, potentially as fine a runner as Ithacans have ever had. Passing unusually weak.

DEFENSE: Hard hit by graduation and has yielded seven TD's in first two games.

CHIEF ASSET: Marinaro.

CHIEF PROBLEM: General lack of above-average material. Both lines largely inexperienced.

TYPE OF ATTACK: Wing-T with balanced line and split end. Flanker occasionally in motion.

Cornell Has Major Threat. A Cornell sophomore, 205-lb. Ed Marinaro, last week gained considerably more yardage against Rutgers than the entire Princeton team did the previous Saturday. When Ed Marinaro carried 41 times for 245 yards against the highly-respected Scarlet defense, he erased from the Ithacans' record book such names as Pete Larson and Gary Wood, both of whom were good enough to turn pro.

He will accordingly pose a game-long problem for the unpredictable Tigers, whose own offense still gives no sign of being able to win a high scoring contest. Marinaro is the tailback in a backfield which includes 200 lb. Mike Phillips at the other halfback spot; 205 lb. Frank Bennett as the fullback, and either 200 lb. Bill Arthur or 190 lb. Rick Furbush as quarterback.

Fortunately for the Tigers, Cornell's passing game is proving to be woefully below par. If the Red had a quarterback of even average ability, the combined threat with Marinaro could serve to make it a solid contender.

Against Rutgers, however, the Ithacans were 3 for 11 for a total of 17 yards the kind of figures you would expect to be compiled in a hurricane. With a passing performance of that kind, Marinaro's achievements become all the more spectacular.

Cornell was 3 and 6 a year ago, lost fairly heavily by graduation and hasn't had a good freshman team in three or four years. Pre season estimates saw the Red battling with Columbia and Brown to escape the cellar.

The Ithacans lost their opener to Colgate, 28-24, but last week did somewhat better than expected in holding Rutgers to 21-7. Their defensive platoon and offensive backfield were largely cut apart when the Class of 1969 departed, so that the reconstruction process is likely to take some time.

The Tigers won in the Palmer Stadium finale last fall, 41 to 13, and appear to have the potential to repeat without trouble. So far, however, the potential hasn't come close to what is expected of it, and accordingly the issue at Ithaca will remain in doubt until Princeton shows whether or not it can take charge of a weaker opponent.

PHS TAKES ON TRENTON

After Blanking Ewing, 19-0. Thoughts that this might be a long season for the Princeton High School football team, which played in uninspired fashion while losing to Hamilton last week, were quickly dispelled Saturday morning with the Little Tigers' impressive 19-0 shutout of visiting Ewing.

Coach Dick Wood's team will try to make it two victories in a row over Mercer County teams when it travels to Trenton High School Saturday for a 2 p.m. contest with the Tornadoes. Trenton, like Princeton is 1-1, having lost its first of the season last week to St. Anthony, 15-0.

'We ought to do all right, Wood predicted. "Trenton didn't look too good but St.

Anthony has a real fine team this year and it's hard to make comparisons."

Wood reported that Trenton couldn't pass against the Iron Mules. "They completed only one out of 11 and had one intercepted," he said.

A half dozen years ago Trenton was THE team to beat on the PHS schedule. A win over Trenton could salvage the season no matter what the Little Tigers might do the rest of the campaign.

Although in recent years, football has taken a downturn at Trenton and Princeton High has had the better of it, the Tornadoes are definitely on the way back under coach Frank Capraro, and the game figures to be an even one. Much is at stake, as the loser will be virtually eliminated from the Mercer County championship race.

PHS Turnaround. After the Hamilton loss last week, Wood said his team was able to run the ball but do little else. The defense was weak, particularly on pass defense. Against Ewing, the defense exonerated itself.

PARDON MY SHOULDER: PHS end Mike Tomlinson's shoulder block has Ewing runner Rich Slifko upended in mid-air to action in the first period. It was an aroused PHS defense like this that completely throttled the Ewing offense for a 19-0 victory. (Staff Photo)

Chris Mislow's recovery of a Ewing fumble on the Ewing 31 in the first period set up Princeton's first TD. In the final period, Lawrence Parker's interception of a Dave Dial pass — his second of the game — which he returned some 35 yards for the Little Tigers' third touchdown, put the game out of reach.

In between, the PHS defense forced Ewing to make mistakes. It harrassed Dial, Ewing's quarterback, to the point where he was forced to release the ball too quickly causing him to miss open receivers.

"Our kids were open, we just couldn't get the ball to them," said Ewing coach Steve Meonch after the game.

"Our pass defense and pass rush was better this week," Wood said. "We didn't make as many mistakes. Most of the time, the defensive unit that contained Ewing was comprised of Eddie Vernon, Richard Jackson, Lawrence Parker, Mark Cuomo, Bill Beachell, Craig Singer, Jeff Grover, John Hodges, Chris Mislow, Dave Benson and Dave O'Brien.

Parker, who were lead weights every day during the summer to build up his strength, played an outstanding game as middle linebacker. He was in on tackle after tackle, sometimes making three in a row. He intercepted two passes and occasionally ran as fullback on offense.

"Parker's a good player. He's coming. He's only a junior and he has lots of ability," Wood observed.

Another who turned in a creditable performance was Mislow, who was supposed to miss the game because of sprained knee ligaments. "He looked like a million dollars out there," said Tom Murray, defensive coach of the Little Tigers last year who is now coaching the 150-pound team for Princeton University.

PHS Looks Sharp. The first time PHS ran the ball, fullback Gary DiVinio went off tackle for seven yards. It was a play that would be repeated with the same degree of success on many occasions. Two more carries by DiVinio and one by tailback Rich Oherman and PHS had two first downs.

A few plays later on a fourth-and-one situation when Parker fumbled on the Ewing 21, it looked as if PHS might be repeating its mistakes of a week ago. Ewing fumbled the ball right back, however, and Mislow recovered on the visitors' 31. LouJohn Rossi ran to the 25. Then the junior tailback tossed to Tim Taggart for the game's first score. The attempted extra point was low

In the second period, Cuomo returned a short Ewing punt to the 30. Seven plays later, Rossi scored from three yards out, handling the ball on five of the seven plays. He was stopped, however, trying to run the ball over for the two point conversion.

Shortly thereafter Ewing made its deepest penetration. Starting from the PHS 48, following an interception of a Rossi pass by Leroy Velit, and aided by a roughing the passer penalty and a pass interference call on Princeton's defensive halfback, Jackson, Ewing had the ball on the Little Tiger 17, first and 10.

On the next play, Mislow broke through, chased Dial and threw him for an 18-yard loss. On fourth down, Jackson redeemed himself by intercepting a Dial pass in the end zone. It was that kind of game for the PHS defense.

The entire second half was a struggle between Dial to get Ewing on the scoreboard — which wasn't working, incidentally, because someone had broken a switch — and the determination of the PHS defense to bottle him up. The lone scoring play in the half, Parker's interception, was set up by the defense.

Ewing tried a double hand off with Dial giving to Rick Slifko, but as the latter tried to pass, his arm was hit and the ball arched weakly into the hands of Parker. Phil Nulan's kick was good.

To The Victors. . . After the game, Wood was in a position to hand out praise. Two players came quickly to mind. "I'm especially pleased with DiVinio," he said. "He ran very well, the best he's run in any game or practice." Listed on the charts at only 170 pounds, DiVinio ran through the middle of the Ewing line time and again.

Wood also mentioned Maury Peabody, the team's captain and quarterback. Said he, "Peabody ran the team practically the whole game and did a good job. He also blocked very well."

A day later, after watching films of the game, Wood reported some fine play by two PHS linemen that wasn't readily apparent had been captured in sharp detail by the camera.

"On defense," he said, "John Clausen played the middle guard position better than it has been played in a long time. I don't think he was moved out of there once."

Wood credited the play of guard Isaac Menashe on offense. Menashe is a 168 pound junior.

PDS AT HOME SATURDAY

Against Pennington Prep. Two football teams still seeking their first victory of the season will meet Saturday, when Princeton Day School takes on Pennington Prep beginning at 2 p.m. on its own field.

The Panthers could not hold on to a 14-point first period lead last weekend and dropped their second contest of the fall to Solebury School, 28-14. Pennington Prep was rounded 32-6 by Wyoming Seminary in its opening game, and lost its second to Morristown Prep, 20-14, last Saturday.

The Blue and White badly needs a win here to avoid falling downhill into a disastrous season. Following Pennington Prep is Hun, which will be rated a clear favorite over the Panthers. Perkiomen Academy of the New Church (Bryn Athyn) and George School also remain on the schedule and none of these games will be any easier.

For the first quarter on Saturday, PDS did just about everything right. The offense, coming off a sluggish performance against Montclair a week earlier, moved extremely well, aided by strong blocking. Solebury cooperated nicely by fumbling inside its 30-yard line on its first series of downs after the opening kickoff.

Given the opportunity, the Panthers moved down the field, and scored on a nine-yard pass from quarterback Eric Heggen to Dave Claghorn. This worked so well, that Heggen passed to Claghorn again for the P.A.T. and PDS had a 8-0 lead. The PDS defense stopped Solebury after the kickoff, and the Panthers were in business again.

Kirk Moore spearheaded this drive with a 30-yard run to inside Solebury's 10-yard line and then went off tackle for the touchdown. Moore had a fine day for himself, gaining 126 yards in 13 carries. The second two-point conversion was nullified when Tony Dale caught Heggen's pass out of bounds.

Leading 14-0 at this point, PDS seemed to be on its way to an easy triumph, but the momentum in the game shifted suddenly in Solebury's favor with just a few seconds gone in the second period. Faced with a third and long yardage situation, the visitors tried a screen pass, and turned it into a 60-yard touchdown play. They ran the ball across for the two-point conversion.

Later in the quarter, Solebury's Doug Carter, who had gained 151 yards the week before, got loose on a 40-yard touchdown run, and another successful two-point conversion gave the visitors a 16-14 lead at halftime.

The third period was scoreless, but in the fourth Solebury controlled the ball for all but about six plays, and ground out two more touchdowns to seal the verdict. Coach Dan Barren pointed out that Solebury won the game "between the tackles," with its big offensive line allowing the backs to just grind out the yardage at three and four yards at a time.

Dave Claghorn, who caught one touchdown pass on offense, also was busy on defense, making one tackle and assisting on 17 others.

HUN EDGES FARRAGUT

Plays at Perkiomeo Next. Hun will open its defense of the Penn-Jersey League football championship, which it shared last year with Bryn Athyn when it opposes Perkiomen Saturday at Perkiomeo.

The game will start at 2:30.

Hun's 14-12 victory over Admiral Farragut here in its opener last week was closer than had been expected. "A lot closer than I thought," said Hun coach Dave Leete.

Spoiling the future admirals two first-period scores, Hun came back on the passing of its quarterback Mike Maguire to tie the score 12-12 in the final period. It was on the game when Maguire passed to fullback Jim Koplliner for the two-point conversion.

A face mask penalty on the opening kickoff gave Farragut good field position and it went into score from the one on a quarterback sneak. Then a minus five yard Hun punt later in the period put Farragut on the Hun 35 and again the visitors scored for a 12-0 lead. The TD came on an eight-yard pass.

"We were a little tight. We just didn't do anything right in the first half. We made a lot of mistakes which I hope we can clean up by next week," Leete said.

In the third quarter, Hun got its first TD of the season when Maguire threw a screen pass to his halfback Steve Peters for a play that covered 78 yards. Alan Chalifoux's PAT kick was blocked.

In the fourth period, Maguire hit his other halfback Mike Rossi, with a 51-yard bomb to tie the score.

Hun's defense, which is rated ahead of the offense, settled down in the second half and held Farragut at bay. Leete cited the tackling of Dirk Whitehead and linebacker Billy Dennis.

TWO VOTES FOR THE AMAZINS: Walter Mironchik mirrors what seems to be the consensus when he picks the Mets to defeat Baltimore in six games in the World Series. William Konietzko also likes the Mets, but in seven games. (Staff Photo)

Question Of The Week

Question: Who do you think will win the World Series between the Mets and the Orioles and in how many games?

Asked of Borough and Township employees.

Walter Mironchik, Township engineering department: I'm going with the Mets in six. What they've shown in the last few weeks is the reason I feel that they can take it — consistent pitching and timely hitting.

William Konietzko, Township engineering department: The Mets in a full, seven game series. Everything is going so well for them. They've got everything down pat now; everything is working their way. They've got the luck behind them now and something else to back them up — hitting.

Laurence B. Patterson, Borough tax collector: I'd like to see the Mets win it but I think Baltimore has a better team, basically. The Orioles have a better team all around; they're a little older, a little more experienced. The Mets have been down so long you sort of want to go for the underdog, but I think Baltimore will take it in six. It's a little tough for an old Yankee fan to have to pick someone else.

Bob Mooney, Borough Administrator: I think the Mets have the momentum now. They have the pitching. As I see it, the whole thing boils down to the question, Can the Mets hit Baltimore pitching the way they did the Braves? If they can, I think they've got it. I'll say the Mets in six.

Andy O'Hara, Borough sanitary inspector: I think the Mets will take it in six games. I think they're the Cinderella team and they'll come through.

James Doherty, Township Small Animal Control officer: Why, the Mets, of course! I think the Mets will take it, four games to three. Why the Mets? Because they are my team. I bet I could have gotten 100 to 1 odds on this before the start of the season. The Mets are worked up now. Put your money on the Amazins.

Sgt. Lester Anderson, Township police: I think Baltimore will win it in six games. I think experience will tell. The Mets have been riding high — too high. I think it's about time for them to have a letdown.

Chief Peter J. McCrohan, Borough police: I realize that Baltimore is an 8 to 5 favorite but I'll have to stick with the Mets. A team that's played as well as they have deserves my support. I've always liked Gil Hodges. I think he is an excellent manager. I'll pick the Mets in seven; I think they'll go all the way.

Don Horney, Borough engineer: I just feel the Mets will do the job for all the old New Yorkers in the National League. I think they'll take it in six.

George Jansen, Township garage: Baltimore. I'll say it will go at least five. The pitching may be about equal but Baltimore has the more consistent hitters. What's keeping the Mets up is they are getting hits when it counts.

John W. Ijames, Township garage: I think the Mets will win in six games. The Mets have the best pitching, and it seems like everything is working in their favor now. Seems like they got it going their way and there isn't anybody who can stop them.

Don Barr, executive director, Borough Township Recreation Commission: The Mets. Who else? Probably in five. Why? Their tremendous pitching and hitting.

Ptl. Anthony Ranfone, Borough police: I'd like to see the Mets win it in five. Somebody upstairs must be with them for them to come as far as they have from so far back. And as long as that somebody is with them I'll say the Mets will take it in five.

Bernard Glover, Borough building inspector: The Mets I hope. I'd like to see them take it in five, but I'm afaraid of that Baltimore pitching.

John L. Young, Borough incinerator: The Mets will take it in five. They've got good clutch hitters; they got clutch runs when they need them. They've also got some good steady pitchers. They'll take it in five.

Willie Stevens, Borough engineering department: Baltimore in seven games. Baltimore is not going to have any cakewalk the Mets have some good pitchers but I still think they'll take it.

ROSSO'S TAKES LEAD

In Women's Bowling League, Rosso's Cafe vaulted from a three-way tie for third place to sole possession of first last week in the Princeton Women's Bowling League.

Rosso's, which rolled the high team series of 2356, has 22 points, two more than runner-up Swift's Colonial Diner. Cranbury Bank, Pin Pals and Rocky & Sons are in a three-way tie for third at 16-all. Last week's leader, Mettler, fell back to a tie with Plainsboro Package Store for fourth place.

A 213 game-high for the week — by Marilyn Silvester and Sara Rose's 175-173 paced Rosso's. Other high games: 198 by Shirley O'Connor of Mettler, 179 by Phyllis Boccanfuso of Will's Shell and a 173 by Mary Horlhurt of Pin Pals.

Swift's Colonial Diner rolled the high team game of 848.

Mather and Judge Win

Maury Mother, who last month won the club championship at Springdale, teamed with Dick Judge last weekend to take the annual Curtis W. McGraw Memorial Tournament.

In 36 holes of medal play, they shot a net 66 each day for a 132 stroke total. The better hall of partners was counted, with 85% of each player's handicap allowed.

The runners up were Dick Luehler and Bob Lewis, just a stroke off the pace each day with 67-67 134. Others in the top five teams. Ross Shrader and Roland Smith, 71 66 137, after Shrader shot the first 18 on his own because Smith was unable to play Saturday; Ralph Allaire and Ed Shaw, a pair of 69s for 138; and Charlie Coppinger and Thomas James, 70 69 139.

BOWLING NOTES

Tamasi Rolls 601. The last shall be first—that's the way it was last week in the A League.

Tony Tamasi and Angelo Tamasi, both of Tamasi Plumbing, which is tied for last place with Farr Hardware, had themselves a productive night. Tony was on his way to a fat 600 series when he opened with games of 221 222. But he ended just breaking the 600 level with a 601 when he slipped to a 158 in his final game. Angelo fashioned the high single game in the league for the evening, a 232.

One pin back at 231 was Jack Bartolino of Stefanelli's. Other high games: Jack Lucey's 226, Mike Pinelli's 222 and Bob Cifelli's 219. Between 212 and 200 were Joe Baldino, Frank Delneso, Charles Bartolino, Less Gibbs, Tom Sculerati, Jim Kahny, Bill Bathie, Sam Lisi, Bucky Cupples and Stan Sadovy.

In the standings, Ivy Inn broke out of a three-way tie for first place and is on top with 20 points. Those who shared the top last week — Smith Bindery and Balestrieri plus Leo's Gulf and Stefanelli are all tied for second at 18. Princeton Inn has 16.

Princeton Aviation gained six points in the Nassau League last week to take over first place. Crescents and Kinkston Wine and Liquor, tied for first last week, fell back into a four-way tie for second with Harrison AC and Grover Lumber. All have 18 points, four less than Princeton Aviations. First Aid is third with 16.

The best bowling was fashioned by Grover Lumber. Vince Tofano claimed the high single game in all leagues with his 233, while Ed Duncan Sr. rolled 182-211-206 to miss the 600 level by one pin. Ed Duncan Jr. had a 214 and two other Grover members, Tom Sculerati and William Dumble rolled 201 209 and 202 respectively.

ARCHITECT SELECTED

For W. Windsor-Plainsboro School. A major step forward in the planning of the construction of a secondary school for the West Windsor-Plainsboro Regional School District was taken Monday night with the naming of Shaver & Company as its architect, by the Board of Education.

The firm was selected because of its broad experience in innovative schools. It is currently developing several high school projects in Pennsylvania, New York and Vermont.

The final process for the selection of an architect began in July and included interviews as well as visits to schools which had been built by the architects under consideration. Schools visited in September provided Board members and administrators with an opportunity to see the buildings in use, and for discussion with students, teachers and administrators of the schools.

The Board has planned meetings with the architects of Shaver to establish a time schedule for site selection, educational specifications and building design. Citizen advisory committee reports have been made available to the architect for use in considering the various aspects of the building program.

A progress report on the secondary school has been scheduled for Wednesday, November 12, at 8 p.m. by the Board and the West Windsor-Plainsboro PTA.

In other action by the board, Sandor P. Havran of Trenton was appointed Principal Administrative Assistant, and will serve as principal of the Plainsboro Elementary School.

Mr. Havran has a B.A. in elementary education from Trenton State College. He received his M.Ed. and is currently in a doctoral program at Temple University. He taught at the Monument School in Trenton prior to joining the staff in the West Windsor-Plainsboro School district.

Clothed or Unclothed—Repent!

To the Editor of Town Topics:

It is irritating to find your movie reviewer remarking, with regard to "Medium Cool", that "except for a nude sequence, even the fictional episodes carry a feeling authenticity . . ." (Oct. 2). What is the reason for the exception?

One possibility is that your reviewer considers the particular nudes involved to have been spurious. I take it this is obviously absurd.

The other possibility is that your reviewer though the scene either unconvincingly portrayed or else inherently implausible. Neither is true, of course.

There is nothing incongruous in the idea of an urban bachelor chasing his girl around his apartment in the nude. Married men have been known to do it. Not only that, but the scene is done with enough energy and imagination that, had it been wildly unlikely, it would still have been easy to enjoy.

Besides being inoffensive, the episode is an insignificant part of the total film. I mention the matter only because I suspect that the real purpose of your reviewer's remark was to express discomfiture at the whole idea of "nude sequences." Such an attitude is a serious lapse of taste.

Worse yet, it suggests a regrettable editorial trend, following as it does upon the heels of your decision to reprint "Parents' Magazine's" fatuous description of "Romeo and Juliet" as "containing an unnecessary nude scene." Does the Family Movie Committee now write your reviews, too? I urge you, before Town Topics takes a great stride into the nineteenth century, to look about you, and repent.

News Of The CHURCHES

DR. RIZZO TO RETIRE

Revived Rosedale Chapel. Dr. Samuel S. Rizzo, pastor of Rosedale Chapel, Carter Road, since 1952, retires this month. He will serve the ecumenical movement in Brazil this winter.

The Chapel had been closed for five years when Dr. Rizzo, in the summer of 1952, saw a newspaper announcement calling for a trustees' meeting to authorize sale of the building. He attended the meeting and asked for a chance to re-open the Chapel, offering his service as a pastor free of charge. He was a visiting professor in Lating American history at New York University at the time.

The offer was accepted and non - denominatioeal vesper services on Sunday were begun the following November, held monthly at first, then semi-monthly and on other occasions until 1957, when the weekly services began.

Dr. Rizzo preached his last sermon on September 28, with his son S. Serge Rizzo at the organ and his daughter, Mrs. Lelia Randsepp, formerly of the Geneva Conservatoire, as soloist. At the reception following, he and his wife received gifts from the congregation.

Under Dr. Rizzo's leadership, Rosedale Chapel members first renovated the old building, installed heating facilities and added a kitchen-study.

In 1959 the congregation voted affiliation with the United Presbyterian Church in the U.S.A. after weighing the matter for two years. Paradoxically, the two Presbyterian families in the congregation voted against it. The Chapel became a member of the United Presbyterians in 1960.

The church purchased three acres of land for future development and launched plans for a community building In 1960. By June 1962, the 42-member congregation had completed and paid for the new building, which is larger than the chapel itself. Renovation and additions to the Chapel have cost more than $60,000, accomplished without indebtedness.

Dr. Rizzo will serve in the "Repentence, Renewal and Reunioo" movement of the Christian churches in Brazil, where he visited last spring. He is already close friends with Agnello Cardioal Rossi of Brazil, who visited him in Princeton in 1967.

In Brazil, where Christianity is experiencing dramatic changes, more than 700 priests are said to have left the Roman Catholic Church in recent years. The Protestant churches have increased their congregations by an estimated 600% over the past 20 years and are separating into an estimated 107 denominations. Dr. Rizzo has been called to assist the ecumenical movement towards unity.

During October, the Rev. Stanley M. Taylor will conduct the Sunday worship services. Dr. Taylor, who lives in Princeton Junction, is associate Synod executive for the Synod of New Jersey, with executive responsibility for the New Brunswick Presbytery.

The regular Sunday School and worship services at the Chapel have been advanced a half-hour to begin at 10:30 and at 11 for the fall and winter months.

But at Country Antiques can you find . . .

Early Stewart banjo-mellow in tone and practically all original. A child's wagon, but of course, all wood, best for pulling kids but nice for gardening.

Princetoniana — several items, nostalgic and so perfect for loyal followers.

Guardsmen's jackets from Buckingham Palace, scarlet in color, never worn; unfortunately, all size 38 but good for tall slim girls or small men. Bearskin Guardsmen hats — maybe the only two in the United States! (We modestly admit one of our favorite customers searched Australia and England and found his hanging on our porch on Nassau Street).

Another and larger old time hump-trunk full of delightful ancient dresses beautifully preserved.

"WE'VE GIVEN THEM EVERYTHING . . . HAVEN'T WE?"

The best schooling, good clothes, a comfortable home . . . all these are important.

But don't they need answers to the big questions — such as Who Is God? What Is God? Where is God? What does He have to do with me?

Your children's sense of security and lasting happiness may well depend on being given good and useful answers to these important questions.

In the Christian Science Sunday School, children learn to know God, to feel a closeness to Him, and to turn to Him for the spiritual resources they need to strengthen and enrich their lives.

Isn't this something you would like to give your children? Why not bring them next Sunday morning at 11:00 A.M. to the

JUST LISTED: For "As You'd Like It" living, you can't argue with the perfection of this just decorated 5 bedroom, 2½ bath Colonial on a wooded acre in Longacres. Geared for the family who wants everything from formal family room with fireplace to carpeted paneled rec. room for children and study for Dad to central air conditioning, heated pool, and screened porch for summer pleasure. More than 3,000 square feet for better living. $71,500

JUST LISTED: on a pretty double lot in the Borough We have a 5 bedrooom 2 bath home with a basement family room. Basically it is not a huge house but its expansion was certainly well planned for housing a goodly sized family. When you weigh all this with its location and price, it is an exeellent opportunity for $44,900

The charms of houses built about 1777 would be obvious to those who love them, i.e. 2' walls, deep, deep window sills, wide board floors and massive fireplace. In this case living room is 25 x 13 and family room-dining room combination with fireplace is 24 x 13, with a library for good measure. The 4th dormitory sized bedroom has built in bunks and cupboards aplenty. Large detached 2 car garage could easily become a studio if you have need for such. The challenges are here too — kitchen could be modernized, baths could be spruced up. Lovely and convenient part of Lawrenceville.
